STARTS PLANS FOR ANGLO-AMERICAN AMITY TREATY

Great Britain Building Up Road to Agreement Over Defensive Alliance

By DAVID M. CHURCH
Copyright, 1923, International News

LONDON, Feb. 3.—With infinite pains and diplomatic skill, Great Britain is engaged today upon the construction of ground work and background for an Anglo-American accord. If the British are able to bring it about it will be embodied in a definite treaty of amity.

Because of America's policy of non-intervention in European affairs, considerably strengthened in the past four years, British officials do not hope for a cut and dried alliance of defensive nature. But far-seeing statesmen in the British empire are convinced that the time is coming, probably within the next year or two, when Britain must turn from Europe to strengthen her world position.

The bankrupt, war-torn nations of Europe will have little or nothing to offer. Asia is out of the question. The British overseas dominions are not sufficiently powerful for London's needs. There is only one place to turn to—the United States.

The Anglo-French entente is virtually dead. The two countries are split upon all the vital international issues. British and French interests in the Near East are divergent and it has been difficult to maintain allied solidarity at Lausanne.

Great Britain opposed military occupation of the Ruhr and the Westphalian industrial zone.

The British were willing to reduce German indemnity, but the French refused.

Balance of Power Gone

Great Britain in the past three years has maintained a policy of moderation towards Russia, against the wishes of France.

It is no secret in London and Paris that the old balance of power is gone. Since the war France has been contracting new alliances with Belgium, Poland, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia. If the Lausanne conference breaks down completely, France probably will contract a separate treaty with Turkey.

Great Britain is making one international gesture after another to attract the friendship of the United States. The more important of them may be thus listed:

1—Abrogation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance because it was offensive to America.

2 — Immediately ratified the Washington conference treaties limiting naval armaments.

3—Speedily accepted America's terms for payments of the war debt owed by Britain to America.

The British are the first nation of Europe to begin paying the money borrowed from Washington during the war. There have been intimations that Britain may emulate the United States by withdrawing the British army of occupation from the Rhine.

British officials make use of every opportunity to emphasize that Anglo-American relations were never so cordial. Despite the intense resentment of British industrial and commercial interests over the new American tariff law, British officials have been

Building Permits for Year Now $1,050,186

The first dull day in months was experienced yesterday in the building department at the city hall.

Only three permits were issued all day and their total value was only $4,950. H. C. Vandewater, superintendent of this department, admitted this morning that local contractors will have to do better than this if February is to be another record month.

However, this month has only seen two business days so far and $25,850 worth of permits have been issued so far. Business for the year so far amounts to $1,050,186.

Permits issued yesterday follow:

Scientists Seek to Discover Compound To Kill Flu Germs

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—An increased staff of research workers and chemists are at work in the Rockefeller institution, it was learned today, in an effort to discover a compound which will kill or counteract the influenza germ.

Announcement of the isolation of the germ after years of study was made by radio broadcasting by Dr. Simon W. Flexner, director of the medical research department.

The discovery was made by Doctors Frederick T. Yates and Peter T. Olinsky.

The difficulty in discovering the germs resulted from the necessity of magnifying a mass of influenza germs 1000 times before a single germ could be recognized and studied. It is one of the smallest of the deadly germs.

GREAT BRITAIN IN NEAR EAST WAR PREPARATIONS

More Warships Sail for Turkish Waters; Limit of Concessions, Report

MALTA, Feb. 3.—Great Britain renewed her Near East war preparations today on the eve of the time limit given Turkey to accept or reject the Lausanne peace treaty. Two additional warships sailed for Turkish waters bearing large supplies of ammunition. Reinforcements of British marines and infantry departed also for the British fortress at Chanak, at the narrows of the Dardanelles.

It seems to be the belief here that the chances are about even Turkey will sign the treaty. In some circles it is feared that action in the Ruhr district by the French will cause a final break between Great Britain and Turkey.

Further Concessions

LAUSANNE, Feb. 3.—The allied powers made further concessions to Turkey today in an effort to persuade the Angora government to accept the allies' Near East peace terms. It was agreed that Turkey should maintain as many troops as she desired in Thrace. Hitherto, the Thracian forces had been limited to a few thousand gendarmerie.

The allies refused, however, to agree to the Turkish demand for a plebiscite in Mosul to determine whether this territory with its rich old fields, should be united with the Turkish state or considered a part of the kingdom of Irak.

The fight against Turkish acquisition of Mosul has been led by Great Britain.

The allies refused even to discuss a Mosul plebiscite.

The impression was given that the concessions made today were the final limit of what Turkey might expect.

Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, was given until tonight to accept or reject the allied terms.

GERMANY RUNS UP WHITE FLAG AND STOPS STRIKE

Passive Resistance Ends Is Belief; France to Hold Ruhr, Until Paid

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service

PARIS, Feb. 3.—German resistance has been broken in the Rhineland and Ruhr and France has won a bloodless victory of the first magnitude, according to officialdom and the press today.

The calling off of the German railway strike by the German authorities is regarded as the first step in a general German backdown all along the line. The rail strike was the backbone of German passive resistance.

Echo de Paris reveals that Germany has sent a note to the inter-allied reparations commission protesting against the allied decision of January 26 holding Germany in voluntary default of all payments and deliveries pledged under the Versailles treaty.

The note pointed out that the treaty obligated the reparations commission to study Germany's resources and capacity for payments before making such a decision.

Echo de Paris quoted a British diplomat as saying:

"Germany has hoisted the white flag." In its editorial comment this newspaper declared:

"France will hold on to what she has seized until everything owed by Germany is paid. Germany will have to pay for everything she obtains from the Ruhr."

Phillipe Millet, writing in the Petit Parisien, said France is resolved not to hold any negotiations with Germany until the Germans acept French occupation of the Ruhr as a legitimate result of German defaults on reparations payments.

According to the Matin, French reparations experts are studying new guarantees which will be imposed as a result of Germany's failure to pay 500,000,000 gold marks indemnity due January 31.

I was talkin' over the back fence to Mr. Rogers about some of the fellers that are runnin' Glendale and sayin' they ought to do different in lots of ways. Mary heard us and come out. She says to me, "What do you know about runnin' anything?" I wasn't goin' to let Mr. Rogers see how that woman runs me, so I spoke right up and says, "Mary, this is a free country. We ain't got no kings here. Every man is as good as another. We got a right to criticize our rulers." "That's all right," she says, "and what good does it do anybody for you and Mr. Rogers to be backbitin' them as is trying to do their duty? If there's anything really wrong go and tell 'em so and help 'em make it right. If you don't want to do that you better keep still."

EUROPEAN OUTLOOK VERY BAD, SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

War May Be Outcome, Now Belief of Ex-Premier; Germany Near Ruin

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Feb. 3.—The possibility of a new war, resulting from French seizure of the Ruhr, was mentioned by former Premier David Lloyd George upon his arrival here today from Spain. Troubles are being laid up for the whole world, the statesman added.

Immediately after landing, Mr. Lloyd George called for back files of the newspapers. He plunged into these papers and studied them with care, especially events in Central Europe.

Subsequently, the former premier issued the following statement to International News Service:

"The European outlook is bad, unquestionably bad. It is difficult to say whether war will be the outcome. Germany economically and politically is in a bad way.

"Occupation of the Ruhr was an act of gross folly, and the wrong way to approach the reparations problems. It is the surer way of not getting reparations from Germany and it is laying up a store of trouble for the world which I did not care to contemplate."

In commenting upon the American debt terms, Mr. Lloyd George said that the United States had acted fairly, but that the terms were hard:

"England is able to bear the American debt burden, but it is most heavy," continued the ex-premier.

"The American government has acted fairly. It has made the best terms possible for their own country, but they are hard and frankly I am disappointed.

"The effect will be to make prices dearer in England. And I do not believe payment will help the United States. It will diminish American trade markets throughout the world."

Mr. Lloyd George is hopeful that war in the Near East will be averted.

Americanism Is Topic Of Talk at Legion Post

A short talk on Americanization was made last night by L. D. Barr of Tacoma at the weekly meeting of the local post of the American Legion.

According to Mr. Barr one reason the foreigner in America is so suspicious of everyone and everything is because immigrants have been tricked so often. He urged that the foreigner should be protected against those who are trying to exploit him.

Commenting on the un-Americanism of the Klu Klux Klan, Mr. Barr asserted his belief that the American Legion would be the first to stamp out such an evil.

The regular business meeting preceded and followed Mr. Barr's speech. Announcement was made that the board of trustees, consisting of R. C. Plume, Atty. Eugene J. Wix and Emil O. Kiefer, had re-leased the hall at 610 East Broadway for another year. The consideration is $65 a month. This building is owned by P. S. Hayselden.

HARDING WRITES SPECIAL MESSAGE

President to Ask Congress To Approve Settlement Of Plan on Debts

By H. K. REYNOLDS
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—With the final agreement for the funding of the $5,000,000,000 British debt on his desk and with administration leaders in both the senate and house prepared to put through a resolution of ratification before the end of next week, President Harding today began work on the special message in which he will ask congress to formally approve the settlement reachded by the Anglo-American debt negotiations.

The president has not yet decided whether he will appear before congress in person, but the impression prevails that he will elect to deliver his message orally, not only for the effect upon congress, but also for the favorable impression that would thus be produced abroad.

Due Next Week

Congress will receive the report of the American debt funding commission and the president's message of transmittal about the middle of next week. Immediately after, the resolution of ratification or proposed amendments to the funding act will be introduced in the house by Representative Theodore Burton, Republican, of Ohio, a member of the American commission.

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 3.—J. C. Whitman, chief examiner of the state civil service commission, tendered his resignation to Governor Richardson upon receipt of the governor's budget, it became known.

Substantial Structure Will Prove Great Addition to Glendale 'Sky Line'

ADDED development of the business section of the city of Glendale is seen in the architectural drawing of the six story building to be erected at the northeast corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway by the Security Trust & Savings Bank at a cost of $500,000. According to reports the building will be completed and ready for occupancy within eight months.

The old P. E. depot, which was for many years a nucleus about which the business center grew, has been entirely razed and ere long work will be begun on the new building, which, when completed, will be the largest and finest building in the city.

It will be a six story and basement Class A building, offering accommodations for the bank and 114 offices. Italian Renaissance style of architecture has been used in the design. The exterior of the building will be faced with terra cotta. Plans call for steel, concrete and marble with hardwood finish throughout.

Excellent Corner

As a setting for the new building the property has a frontage on Brand boulevard of eighty-nine feet and a depth on Broadway of eighty-six feet. It was formerly owned by the Pacific Electric company. The price paid for it has not been made public.

The banking quarters of the Glendale branch of the Security Trust & Savings Bank will occupy the entire first floor, except the elevator lobby. They will provide nine double teller cages, a double booth escrow department, and directors' room and counters and private offices for the officers. A mezzanine floor will be used as working space.

Elevator Service

The elevator entrance will be on Brand boulevard. Two elevators will serve the five upper floors, which will be arranged in 114 offices. The corridors of the upper floors will be floored and wainscoted with marble.

The basement will contain the bank's vaults and a completely appointed safe deposit department with coupon booths, a consultation room and other facilities for the convenience of customers. In the

EARTH SHIMMIES ARE CONTINUOUS

Violent Quakes Recorded by Instrument But Location Not Yet Learned

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 3.—An earthquake starting at 9.20 Pacific coast time, today which is still proceeding, was of such violence that the recording pens of the University of California seismograph were thrown from the drum.

Officials of the observatory were unable to estimate how far away the quake is or from what direction the earth temblors were coming until the record was complete.

It was characterized as one of the most severe ever recorded here by Professor Andrew Lawson, head of the department of geology.

At 11 o'clock the earth temblors were still in progress. This prevented accurate observations turbances as observers did not wish to interrupt the record for measures.

Offers Explanation

MARE ISLAND OBSERVATORY, Cal., Feb. 3.—Professor T. T. See, well known observer here, today declared the temblors which threw seismographs off their drums in western observatories was probably a repetition of the recent Chilean disaster.

"The observatories in Washington, D. C., yesterday recorded a temblor located approximately 5200 miles from the capital, probably on the west coast of South America. Today's quake is undoubtedly a continuation of that one," he said.

"The ocean is seeping under the earth of the west coast of South America and when it touches the molten lava miles under ground huge disturbances of nature follow. The whole Andes range of mountains has been caused by this gradual seepage of the ocean," Professor See declared.

ZERO WEATHER AT NUMEROUS POINTS IN MIDDLE WEST AND ELSEWHERE

Snow Falls in Some Sections Is Report; Warmer Period Due in California

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Winter staged a sudden "come-back" throughout the west and northwest today. Sharp drops in temperature were recorded, particularly in the upper Great Lakes region, where Minneapolis and St. Paul shivered in a temperature that ranged from 20 to 25 degrees below zero.

The drop in the mercury was the sharpest experienced this winter.

Near zero weather prevailed in Chicago. The weather bureau predicted that it would reach 6 below by tonight.

Declines in the mercury were recorded throughout North and South Dakota, Iowa, Missouri, Colorado and other states, although California reported that "the backbone of the cold wave" there was broken. In some states snow was reported.

Pacific coast points had been experiencing a three day cold wave. At some points on the coast snow had fallen for the first time in fifty years. Orchardists burned thousands of gallons of oil in "smudging" their orchards to prevent frost damage. Bakersfield was the cold spot of California today, recording a temperature of 20 above.

Near Zero Point

Denver's temperature dropped 38 degrees in twenty-four hours, falling to eight below zero. St was colder than 20 below at Bismarck, N. D., while at Kansas City the mercury was hovering near the zero point.

Snow storms were reported in western Iowa and eastern Nebraska. The cold wave was headed south and east, according to reports from the weather bureau at Washington.

America Will Probably Ignore Communications From Russian Government

MANY REASONS FOR PRICE OF WHEAT ARE ADVANCED

All Trouble Is Not With Farmers According to Varied Statements

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
For International News Service

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—It may be, as an able but cynical politician said recently, that "all the trouble with the farmers is the price of wheat." But:

JAMES L. KILGALLEN

Why can't they have some say as to what that price shall be? That's what they want to know.

Also —

Why can't they market their grain on the exchanges of the country?

Officials of the boards of trade, in reply to the first question, say:

"Prices are regulated by the law of supply and demand. We do not manipulate the market."

To question number two they say:

"We will permit any person or firm to engage in the grain trading business if they comply with our rules."

Accept Challenge

E. H. Cunningham, president of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., says he has accepted the challenge of the Chicago Board of Trade—and he "wants the organized farmers to take up the gauntlet hurled at their feet."

He demands legislation to compel grain exchanges to take into their organizations lawful producer-owned companies. He points to the recent refusal of the Chicago exchange to accept a membership application of the United States Grain Growers, Inc., as a concrete example of the need of such legislation.

"Let us have a little more light on the practices of those who deal in our own products."

Taken at Their Word

Says Mr. Cunningham:

"We took the grain exchanges of the country at their word They have deceived us. They have played the part of hypocrite.

"They are now challenging in the supreme court of the United States our right to market grain on the exchanges. And my reply to the grain exchange today is that the American farmer accepts the gage of battle and is prepared to fight for and defend his right to sit on the seat of the grain exchange and vigilantly see that the grain which he produces by the sweat of his face in God's sunlight is honestly measured and fairly valued as it moves through these great gateways of commerce to where it may feed this nation and, by export, the peoples beyond the sea.

"When an institution like the Chicago Board of Trade thwarts the will of society and defies the mandate of the people's representatives in congress; when it disregards in utter ruthlessness its public pledges made after solemn consideration; when it seeks to dominate the other exchanges by a course of propaganda so intricate, invidious and far-reaching as to strike at the foundation of our national life, it is time for men to speak.

"It is time to curb this institution which has erected itself in our midst."

Better Conditions

Farm conditions must improve if trained men and women are to be kept on the farms, according to Mrs. Harriet Wallace Ashby, sister of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. She says:

"The farmer is the keeper of the earth, and he must be trained for his work so that the soil is conserved. The farmer's wife is his business partner. If a farmer wants to succeed he must consult with her. But she must be a trained woman today, and if she is she won't live on the old style farm.

"The trained woman won't stay unless the living standards under which she must bring up her children are suitable. And the trained man won't stay where the trained woman won't stay. Thus, conditions must be made easier and the handicaps removed."

Easy to Secure Death Weapon in Berlin, Is Claim

By KARL M. ELISH
For International News Service

BERLIN, Feb. 3. — It's easy to purchase death weapons in Germany. All sorts of weapons may be secured at any sporting goods store. As a result, crime is rampant. Sneak thieves, robbers and murderers are operating daily. Therefore, every pedestrian in the dark streets of the residential districts is a potential footpad.

KARL M. ELISH

And it follows that the nervous Berliner carries protection. The most one can do is to go prepared—and so a bludgeon of some sort is carried by the excitable man of Berlin.

A rubber club between six and eight inches long and perhaps an inch thick is frequently used by the thugs. It is not as deadly as a blackjack but it is deadly enough.

Still, Berlin is quiet—strangely quiet. You never can tell when something is going to break. Revolution? Well the people seem to be in the mood for almost anything. The lid is liable to come off any time.

FOOD SALE NETS HANDSOME CHECK

A-8 Class Will Spend $65 Remodeling Stage in Wilson Avenue School

A check for $65, the receipts of the A-8 food sale Thursday afternoon, was presented to Miss Noble, principal of the Wilson avenue school, at the final assembly Friday morning by Mary Phillips, president of the A-8 class. The money is to be used in the remodeling of the stage in the auditorium.

Lee Rombeau, president of the Athletic association, was chairman of the assembly, but turned the athletic meeting over to Mr. Merrill, who presented the basketball letters to the A-8 boys. Following the presentation of the letters the athletic certificates were awarded to the winning teams of the inter-class volley ball and soccer and basketball schedules. The volley ball championships were won by the A-81 class and the A-7 11 class. In soccer the A-8 1 class and the A-8 11 class were also victorious.

The club teams winning the schedules in volleyball were captained by Lois Wardell in the eighth grade, and Josephine Miller in the seventh grade. The soccer club teams winning were captained by Jack Booker in the 8th grade and Frank Galbraith in the 7th. The boys' basketball championship was won in the 8th grade by the A-8 III class, John Copeland being the captain, and in the 7th grade by the A-7 III class, Robert Heck, captain.

LANTERN TO GUIDE EXPLORERS OVER JUNGLE ROUTE

Travel by Night to Avoid Deadly Tsetse Fly on Trip in Africa

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
For International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The tiny, flickering light of an American lantern is to be relied upon by a party of explorers that is now preparing to leave London to illuminate a pathway through "darkest" Africa and to thwart the deadly activities of the fearsome tsetse fly. It will be the first time in history, so far as is known, that a lantern has been used for the exploration of African wilds. Four Americans, representing the American Museum of Natural History, will comprise the exploring party. J. H. Clark is head of the expedition and Mrs. Clark will accompany it.

LUTHER A. HUSTON

Party Sails Soon

The party will sail soon from London for headquarters at Nairobi. Its objective is Tanganyika, a huge volcanic crater in a region believed to be rich in historic fossils and in precious metals and jewels. The explorers expect to penetrate districts never previously exploited. Mrs. Clark will be the first white woman ever to adventure near the craters of this famous volcano.

The plan of exploring Africa by lantern light is a device intended to circumvent the menace of the tsetse fly. This deadly insect, the bane of all African explorers, confines its activities to daylight. The American adventurers believed that traveling at night, guided by the rays of the lantern, they can escape the lethal sting of the poisonous fly.

The Clark expedition, which arrived recently on the Cunard liner Berengaria, is completing its outfitting in London. It expects to be away four or five months.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—Recent communications from the soviet government of Russia probably will be ignored by the American government, it was indicated today. These communications, two of them received within the last forty-eight hours, request the aid of the United States in restoring to the Moscow authorities property alleged by them to have been illegally taken out of Russia by refugees of the old Czarist faction.

One of these communications dealt with the arrival of between 800 and 900 Russian refugees on three ships in the Philippine islands. The Moscow authorities charged these vessels were, in effect, "stolen property."

Major General Leonard Wood, governor-general of the Philippines, was instructed today by cable to exercise his own discretion as to whether the refugees were to be permitted to stay in the islands, and to take such measures for their relief as he deemed fit. The question of the ownership of the vessels was ignored.

U. S. SENATOR JOHNSON'S BILL WOULD LIMIT RAILWAY MELONS

Californian Proposes to Make All Railroad Lines Report Before Declaring Dividends

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, has introduced a bill in congress that is destined to cause a lot of commotion in railway-financial circles once congress gets around to considering it. Senator Johnson's bill provides, in short, that no railroad in the United States shall be permitted to declare a dividend until it has first obtained from the interstate commerce commission a certificate to the effect that its equipment and service are sufficient for the needs of the people served by the roads.

GEORGE R. HOLMES

It is one of the most far-reaching bits of railway legislation ever proposed, for, properly enforced, it would bring all railway dividends under partial control of the government. The government could say when and under what conditions railroads would be permitted to proclaim dividends to thousands of shareholders.

The bill is the direct outgrowth of the railway shopmen's strike of last summer, which brought the whole railway system of the country to the brink of collapse. The effects of that strike are still apparent on all the railways of the country in the shape of broken-down equipment, bad-order cars and incapacitated locomotives. There were no men to make repairs, consequently no repairs, and the condition of rolling stock went steadily downward.

Then came the great seasonal movement of crops, coal and other commodities. Embargoes prevailed on some roads for months; coal began to move in great volume to a country menaced by fuel famine, with winter coming on; farmers in the west began sending their crops to seaboard and to the industrial east; shippers long denied cars began flooding the terminals with goods for shipment. All this, added to the impaired condition of equipment on many roads, due to the strike, combined to create a condition of rolling stock that the country will be years in overcoming.

No Cars Available

Shippers have complained of being unable to get cars; farmers and fruit producers of the west have seen their crops rot on the ground because of lack of facilities to move them to market.

"The grape growers of California alone suffered losses of millions of dollars because of lack of shipping facilities," said Senator Johnson, in supporting his bill. "And still railroads go on paying dividends to shareholders that should be spent in replacing worn-out equipment and adding new equipment to meet the legitimate demands of the public.

"It is intolerable that railroads should go on paying huge dividends while the producers of the west are forced to see their crops rot and their stock die because of 'shortage of cars.'"

Senator Johnson's bill is the first of the many amendments to the Esch-Cummins Transportation act of 1920 that will be proposed in congress as a result of the 1922 strike.

There exists little possibility that any of these legislative remedies can be acted upon until next year because of the short life remaining to the sixty-seventh congress and the uncertainty as to when the sixty-eighth congress will be called into session.

Provides for Hearing

The bill further provides that the railroads would ask the interstate commerce commission to O. K. a dividend, whereupon the commission would give thirty days' notice to the public and give shippers plenty of time to frame objections. Then a hearing would be held, if necessary, and a decision rendered in much the same manner that the commission now decides rate increases and decreases.

The bill concludes with a penalty clause providing:

"Any person in anywise co-operating knowingly in the declaration of any dividend without such certificate (from the interstate commerce commission,) or in the payment of any dividend so unlawfully declared 'shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, be punished by a fine of not less than $5000 nor more than $25,000 or by imprisonment for not less than two years nor more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court."

Flood Sale Launched By Furniture Store

You've heard of fire sales, but it remains for Bestland's Furniture Store, 625 South Brand boulevard, to advertise a flood sale. Last Monday and Tuesday, owing to a faulty roof, the heavy rain poured through the store and fairly flooded it, doing damage to the extent of over $2000. Being a man of action, Mr. Bestland immediately determined to inaugurate a flood sale, and in another part of this paper says that drastic reductions in furniture prices are being made to quickly move all furniture damaged by water.

Mr. Bestland, who has been engaged in business in Glendale since last fall, moved to this city from Canada, where he was in the furniture business for many years.

PROTEST RAIDS BY HANKOW THUGS ON FOREIGNERS

Committee Makes Objection To Continued Kidnaping, Looting and Burning

By EDNA LEE BOOKER
For International News Service

SHANGHAI, Feb. 3.—Aroused to action by bandits who are kidnaping foreigners, and burning and looting American and European property, foreign residents of Hankow have appointed the Hankow Foreign Residents' committee to do all possible to bring about the suppression of the outlaws.

EDNA LEE BOOKER

The committee, appointed at a mass meeting of the American, English, French and Italian residents, has issued a plea to the Chinese press which reads, in part, as follows:

"Since its appointment, the Hankow committee has not been inactive. The committee has taken various steps to secure the release of the foreign captives and to secure adequate protection for foreign life and property in the future. . . .

Point to Havoc

"Practically a whole province (Honan) is being devastated, city after city is being looted and burned, thousands and thousands of Chinese homes are being ruined, millions of dollars' worth of Chinese property is being destroyed, and tens of thousands of Chinese lives are being sacrificed because of the inefficiency of the military, the dilatoriness of the Central government and general corruption in high places.

Call on Press

"But the press must take the lead. . . . Let the press demand adequate punishment of the many selfish traitors who are responsible for the present chaotic conditions.

"The Hankow committee would like to be of aid to the Chinese press and people in this emergency. The committee represents interests that are friendly to China and sincerely desire her welfare. The committee represents the Christian missions, the unselfish nature of whose work is becoming increasingly recognized throughout China. And it represents business men who are no less friendly to China. These business men are living in China and among the Chinese. . . .

"Naturally, foreign nationals in China cannot stand by and view with complacency the capture of their fellow nationals by brigands and the destruction of their property, the ruination of their homes, the interference with their work—all in defiance of clear treaty rights. . . . .

Friendly to China

"The Hankow committee and the constituency that it represents is friendly to China and eager to co-operate with every Chinese individual or organization which stands for law and order and for the sacredness of life and freedom, whether of Chinese or foreigners."

According to the latest Hankow dispatches, the Honan bandits are willing to release the foreigners in their custody on the condition that General Wu Pei-fu pays their ransom and meets all other demands.

Fraternity Life Is Blamed for School Boy's Prison Term

By W. R. STOKLEY

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—Detroit high school fraternity "high life" started his son, A. E. Charlesworth, Jr., on the downward path, declares A. E. Charlesworth, Detroit optician.

W. R. STOKLEY

Young Charlesworth, according to a dispatch from Los Angeles, has been sentenced to fourteen years in San Quentin for forgery.

Charlesworth, an ex-service man, became stranded in France after the war and "bummed" his way back to the United States.

"My son's downfall began back in 1916 when he was a high school student and a member of a school fraternity," says the father. "He indulged in the high life of other fraternity brothers. Some of them were the sons of rich men. The influence of fraternity life was unwholesome on him. His mind never seemed the same after he joined the fraternity. Fraternities are nefarious; they led my boy wrong; I place blame for his downfall on them."

GREATER PART OF TRACT SOLD OUT

Orchard Homes Owners Are Planning to Launch a New Subdivision

That Glendalians are quick to recognize real estate values and as quickly take advantage of them was the opinion voiced this morning by I. J. Harlan, of Wright & Hogan, Inc., owners of the New Orchard Homes tract on Broadway, near Verdugo road.

Despite the fact that this tract was opened less than thirty days ago, more than two-thirds of it has already been sold, asserted Mr. Harlan. Prices ranged from $1425 to $2350 for residence lots.

A new paved street is to be built through the tract as well as the installation of city water, gas and electricity. The new high school, for which a contract has already been let by the city, to be constructed at a cost of approximately $600,000, is only one block away.

Orchard Homes Tract has been the means of bringing twenty-six new homes to this section of Glendale, as that number of lot buyers have signified their intention of building at once, it is said.

Wright & Hogan are highly pleased with the rapidity with which this tract has sold and are already planning the opening of another tract in this vicinity.

FIRST MEAL FOR FRENCH MADE OF LIGHTEST FOOD

Heavy Morning Eating in Vogue in England and U. S. Not Favored

By ALICE LANGELIER
For International News Service

PARIS, Feb. 3.—What shall we eat for breakfast? asks Dioscoride in Le Journal. He means "le petit dejeuner," the early morning meal the French take in bed or immediately after rising.

ALICE LANGELIER

Dioscoride believes in the old saw that one man's meat may be another man's poison. Every person must choose his own morning nourishment, but choose it with wisdom. A great deal depends upon the state of the health, the work one has to do and the size of the meal the night before.

Favorite Beverage

Milk chocolate is probably the Frenchman's favorite morning beverage. Almost all women drink it and a large majority of the men. It is delicious as they make it in France, but not too wholesome. Already rich in fat, when added to tartines of bread and butter it forms a food which is exceedingly difficult to digest. Fat people should avoid it.

Coffee with milk is a close second, and this means coffee with chicory in France, which, while not so good to the taste as our American brands, is much better for the health. The older generation and people with delicate stomachs imbibe "infusions" made of little white flowers, camomile and cambric tea.

"Drink" Breakfast

To "drink" is to breakfast here in France. They cannot understand the heavy morning meal of English and Americans. To take fruit into an empty stomach is to commit a grave error. And as for pie, American pie—well, we have never dared ask the French what they think of that. A dry, hard, toasted bread called "biscotte" is the usual companion to the coffee. It is so hard one has to "dip" it into the drink. It is done in all polite society. "Croissants" and "brioches," soft, rich bread in fancy shapes, are what the children eat. A few who have lived in England like the idea of a soft-boiled egg.

For Children

Children who get up late and have to hurry off to school content themselves with a large piece of fresh bread and a little "tablette" of dry chocolate. This habit of eating bread with chocolate is a peculiarly French one and form the famous little 4 o'clock "gouter" of every French child.

Dioscoride favors a good thick soup, well cooked, with plenty of fresh milk, for the morning meal, or some of the farinaceous foods that are on the market. Few people, he says, take a glass of wine or alcohol at an early hour, and fortunately, for it is the surest way to acquire dyspepsia.

THEATRES

The GLENDALE

In "The New Teacher," Shirley Mason appears as a young society girl who tires of social life. Finally, when the family suffers a financial reverse, she gets a position as school teacher in one of New Yorks "east side" schools. Here, with her sweetheart assuming the role of a policeman, an entertaining drama is worked out, with a rich vein of humor.

In addition, today's program includes five standard acts of vaudeville.

Starting tomorrow (Sunday) and running four days, comes the great Goldwyn picture, "Broken Chains," winner of the $10,000 Chicago Daily News photoplay prize, whose author, Winifred Kimball, leapt into immediate fame following the award. A marvelous picture.

The T. D. & L.

Those who have not yet seen "Anna Ascends," Alice Brady's latest Paramount picture, now on view at the T. D. & L. Theatre, should not miss the final showing today, is the word from Manager Ralph Allan. The story is strong and there are many genuine thrills. Robert Ellis anad David Powell admirably support the star.

Tomorrow (Sunday) Mabel Normand comes to the T. D. & L. Theatre in her latest Mack Sennett film feature, "Suzanna." Story, plot, costumes, atmosphere, all are Spanish, giving the elfish little Mabel a unique and charming role to romp through in her sprightly way.

F. Richard Jones directed the production, under the personal supervision of Mack Sennett.

Wants Traffic Police To Protect Children

Mrs. R. T. Young of 469 Oak street, mother of little Richard Young, aged 7 years, who was struck down by an automobile at noon on Tuesday, while on the way to school, feels that traffic officers should be stationed at the important intersections near schools, at least during the hours when the children are passing to and fro.

"The corner of Colorado and Pacific, where Dick was hit," states Mrs. Young, "is a very dangerous crossing, particularly in rainy weather, as the flooded condition makes it necessary to cross a considerable distance up the street. It is a miracle that my boy was not far more seriously injured. As it is, he is still in bed, covered with bruises.

"There are several other corners near schools that are equally as hazardous for the children," continued Mrs. Young, "and if at no other times, police protection ought to be afforded between the hours of 8:30 to 9, 12 to 1 and 2 to 3, when the majority of the children are forced to make the crossings."

Mrs. Young states that numerous other mothers feel as she does and that they are determined to have something done to remedy the situation.

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Governor's Budget Message Extravagance In Schools Consolidation of Agencies Colorado River Compact

By Gil A. Cowan

HAVE you read Governor Richardson's budget message?

Other than the fact that no additional tax will be necessary if the legislature accepts the board of control's recommendations, there is one outstanding paragraph of interest to every one and Southern California in particular, where it says:

"The recommendations made for the schools are undoubtedly greater than they should be, but it has been my purpose to be liberal in the matter of education. Extravagance in educational matters has run riot during the past few years. The budget shows an increase of $8,618,627.60 or 23 per cent in the past two years. Politicians in the guise of educators have squandered the people's money with a lavish hand and have denounced advocates of thrift as enemies of education.

"A great political organization has been built up which has cost the people an immense sum but has added little to the value of education given school children. The laws have been cunningly amended so that supervisors, school boards and boards of education have little control over the expenditures of school money and hence cannot check extravagance. The people are loud in their protest as indicated by hundreds of complaints received by me, but they are unorganized and unable to cope with the schemes of certain political educators.

"The expenditures of school money in this state must be put on a business basis and the schools must not only teach but practice thrift. Educators should be left in control of educational matters, but sound business men should be in control of expenditures."

Read that over three times, folks, and see if the governor hasn't hit the nail on the head. While he spoke generally to cover conditions throughout the state, it fits almost every specific instance of educational activity.

In an almost hypnotic state the people of California have submitted to taxation without limit for educational purposes and now it is hoped they are awakened to the true situation.

The immigration and housing commission and the state mining bureau will be consolidated with other agencies if the governor's recommendations are carried out.

While there is apt to be a battle culminate from this proposed consolidation, it seems wise, indeed, to eliminate duplication of effort. And certainly there has been a great deal of duplication in the various departments as each developed.

Costs of the Sonoma State Farm for Delinquent Women and the Humboldt Teachers' college at Arcata, as well as the lack of necessity for the California Polytechnic school at Santa Barbara, also were shown up in the budget message.

While these institutions will be maintained for the present, certainly their future depends on the success of their efforts. A policy in state government of getting something in return for money expended seems to be most wise.

About one million and a few odd thousands of dollars are left for the legislature to fight over.

But more probably the solons will listen to the people and carry out an economy program which already gives promise of saving the state this biennium the small sum of $12,000,000 over the preceding period. So much for the governor and his budget.

Ratification of the Colorado river compact means little to Glendale. But it means more to the state at large. The action of the legislature is a sign that California enters heartily into a new era of development of the great southwest.

For fifty years disputes have featured irrigation and power projects along the part time languid stream which rises in midsummer to a raging torrent. In speaking before a senate committee the other day, the state attorney general painted a word dream picture of the hundreds of thousands of acres which will come under cultivation when storage is provided and the waters distributed under the Santa Fe treaty.

But more impressive and picturesque was a farmer's statement regarding Imperial Valley. He said, "You have wondered where the dirt which was worn by the waters from out of the Grand Canyon of Arizona has gone to. Well, we are farming it down below sea level in the richest plain of God's green earth."

In the current issue of the American Magazine a writer tells of interviewing the late E. H. Harriman some years after he had spent $1,500,000 to save the valley from floods in 1907. The government promised to repay him, but did not.

"Are you sorry that you spent those millions?" the rail magnate was asked.

"No," he replied to the local correspondent, "your valley was worth saving, wasn't it,"

Harding Orders Allen To Quit as Observer

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 3.—Because of the withdrawal of American military forces from Germany, President Harding instructed Major General Henry T. Allen to retire as the unofficial observer of this government with the inter-allied Rhineland commission, it was announced officially at the state department.

CHANTICLEER INN ADDS EXTRA UNIT

Two New Dining Rooms Will Accommodate Patrons Of Local Resort

Another quaint unit, consisting of two new dining rooms, has been added to Montgomery's Chanticleer Inn, one of Californost picturesque highway restaunia's most picturesque highway restaurants, at 2980 Los Felix Blvd. Formal opening of the enlarged inn takes place tomorrow.

The rapid growth of the Chanticleer Inn has been one of the outstanding features of the restaurant business in southern California. Opened last summer, its capacity is now more than trebled. A new a la carte dining room also has been built in one of the wings to accommodate those preferring light lunches.

Growth Amazes

"The development of the inn and of the district in which it is located, has been truly amazing to me," said Walter Van de Kamp, secretary of the company operating the inn. "Much of the success of this venture may be attributed to the strategic location of this eating place, on one of the most thickly-traveled highways, the main automobile artery between Glendale and Hollywood."

Offering no music, dancing or other entertainment, the place has depended for patronage solely upon good food and service. From the outset, fried chicken and baked ham dinners have been featured. Because of its odd Norman-French type of architecture and its delightful old world atmosphere, the inn has become one of the show places in southern California.

"Stories and photographs of the inn have appeared in numerous magazines throughout the country," said L. L. Frank, president, and also head of the Van de Kamp Holland Dutch bakers. "Tourists from the east have told us about reading articles concerning the inn in various publications."

Special Menus Served

New service incident to the enlargement includes a baked ham plate dinner on weekdays, besides the full course baked ham and fried chicken dinners as served heretofore. Afternoon teas will be served, and one of the quaint dining rooms will be set aside for afternoon card parties.

Ralph Frank, who recently resigned as head of the Frank Food & Canning Company, is now in active charge at the inn.

The inn has earned a wide reputation because of the excellence of the baked ham and frankfurter sandwiches served. Extreme care is used to select the very best possible hams, and the frankfurters are made of choice cuts of pure pork and veal.

Police and Firemen's Fund Enriched by $25

Lapham, a check for $25 from the Halperin Production company of Hollywood was turned over to this association. It paid for the taking of a film recently at No. 2 fire station.

NEW PLANT WILL MAKE AUTO PARTS

Glendale Engineering Co. Opens Plant to Manufacture Patented Devices

When the doors of the Glendale Engineering company swung wide yesterday, and the lathes began to turn, another up-to-date manufacturing plant was added to Glendale's rapidly growing industrial district.

This plant is located on the two-acre site at 623-643 West Colorado boulevard and is housed in a new steel building, giving ample space for executive offices, machine shops and stock rooms. The acreage, moreover, offers ample room for the expansion that the officials of this corporation are confident will follow the development of their plans.

The Glendale Engineering company is the outgrowth of the Power Implement & Machine works, of Modesto, a plant specializing in the manufacture of the Zanon mower, the Hol-Fast piston clamp, and of straight bevel and spiral bevel master gears and pinions, transmission, timing and flywheel ring gears, axles, shafts, piston rings, wrist pins, and, in short, automotive parts in general.

Controls Patents

The company controls patents on its Zanon mower, Hol-Fast piston clamp and many other devices, putting them on a non-competitive basis. And as they are standard, recognized products, they are in definite and constant demand.

"The company has been expanded and came to Glendale with two objects in view," states its president, J. J. Ferlin, who was president of its predecessor, the Power Implement & Machine works, of Modesto. "First, to put our business on a more economical basis, by getting nearer to the largest automobile center on the Pacific coast, Los Angeles, and its trade territory. And, second, to gain a location where we would have room for expansion."

In outlining the direction in which the business of the Glendale Engineering company is most likely to expand, that of manufacturing automotive parts, President Ferlin called attention to the great increase in volume of the automobile parts business in the last four years.

Growth of Industry

In 1917, he stated, the volume of the parts industry was $255,000,000. By 1922 it had increased to $550,000,000. To substantiate those facts, he called attention to a recent article in a Los Angeles newspaper, showing the 1922 volume of the automobile industry in the United States was nearly three billion dollars and had passed the petroleum industry by close to a billion.

President Ferlin told of the plan worked out by himself and his fellow officials of the company, to consolidate in the near future with the J. J. Schnerr plant at San Francisco, the only fully-equipped gear plant west of Chicago.

"Such a consolidation," he said, "will give us control of the entire automotive parts business on the Pacific coast. And it will bring to Glendale an influx of from 200 to 400 highly skilled, well-paid mechanics and artisans, who will live in Glendale and spend their money in Glendale."

C. F. Allebrand, vice-president and treasurer of the Glendale Engineering company, an executive formerly with the Carnegie Steel company of Pittsburg, and president and official of other eastern companies, outlines as follows the avenues along which their success should go, stating:

Plans Are Outlined

"No industry in the world has so greatly expanded as the automobile and associated industries. Due solely to the fact that it is, in a way, almost a public utility, it was the first big industry to return to normalcy. The demand for replacement parts required for the fifteen million motor cars now in use, with two million new ones being added yearly, will create a volume of business almost impossible for us to comprehend, let alone meet. And this covers only the automobile. Then stop to think of all other gasoline engines, pumping plants, dredgers, motor boats and other allied markets for replacement parts. That our concern will soon heav more business than it can handle is a foregone conclusion."

Other officers of the Glendale Engineering company are: J. J. Schnerr, general superintendent of factory, new president of the J. J. Schnerr Machine works, San Francisco; H. P. Saugman chief engineer, former efficiency engineer with the J. I. Case company, Racine, Wis., later serving in the same capacity with the Leach-Biltwell company, Los Angeles; L. F. Blunden, superintendent of shops, recent superintendent of production with the Lincoln Motor Car company, Detroit, Mich., and S. R. Anderson general sales manager, for many years connected with the sales organization of the United States Rubber company.

Church An Educational Force

THOUSANDS of children whose only knowledge of the Bible is what they learned in Sunday school grow up and acquire more or less of an education. The public school, where children of all races and all creeds gather, can not put much emphasis on the development of character as related to religious growth. In many homes the children receive little or no religious training. So the church is the one avenue through which the principles of Christianity are spread.

Empires, philosophies, human institutions rise and fall but the Bible survives all changes and the church is the mouthpiece through which the principles taught in the Bible are broadcasted.

You may not believe in Christianity. You may be a devotee of Buddhism, Confucianism, Mohammedanism or you may have no religion at all. And in this country and in this age you have a right to your belief. But there is one thing on which the learned of all ages and all religions agree and that is that a knowledge of the Bible is necessary to one who would be truly educated.

Do you deny that the Bible is an inspired book? Granting that you may be right, you must admit that from a literary standpoint alone the Bible is the most wonderful book ever written. Written by different hands, for different people, at different places, under different circumstances and often with different purposes in view, and covering a period of 1500 years, it embraces a great variety of styles of composition in historical narrative, biography, poetry, discourse, letters, law and prophecy. Each of the writers has colored his work by his character, his occupation and his environment. There is no dull monotony in the pages of the Bible and these differences help to emphasize the perfect unity of the whole. The Bible, as a literary work, glows with life and fire and abounds in metaphor.

The public school system must be backed up by the church in the work of educating the young. The truly educated person is not ignorant of the Bible.

AIR PICTURES OF GLENDALE SHOWN

Photographs Taken by Flyer On Display in Window Of Greenleaf Store

Three remarkable aeroplane pictures, showing Glendale vividly from an altitude of 1000 feet and over, are on exhibit in the Greenleaf Drug store, at the corner of Brand boulevard and Harvard street.

These photographs were taken by Aviator William Cross, using a ship secured by the J. D. Miller Realty company of Los Angeles for the purpose of snapping a bird's eye view of their Glendale Crest development.

The camera employed by Mr. Cross in accomplishing this photographic feat is the identical apparatus he employed over the battlefields of France, as a government photographer during the war.

These cameras are an invention developed because of the vital need for a device that would take clear pictures at great elevations, flying at high speed.

The photographs, which show every square inch of Glendale streets, mountains, parks, schools, homes, have been artistically tinted by August Benks, the water-color artist, and are not only strikingly beautiful but interesting and instructive in the extreme.

10 PER CENT SALE INCREASE IS DUE

Figures of 1922 Will Be Passed This Year, Is Journal's Claim

In 1923, according to the February issue of the Automobile Trade Journal, the automotive market can safely absorb 10 per cent more motor vehicles than were sold last year, when 2,550,000 cars and trucks were produced.

Other conditions remaining satisfactory, this promises to be the most successful year, for both maker and dealer, in the entire history of the automobile business.

Approximately 1,650,000 passenger cars will pass their sixth year of service some time during the next twelve months, and under normal conditions must be replaced. This represents the largest replacement market which has been available since the establishment of the automotive industry.

For New Owners

About 800,000 cars will be required for what we may term "new owners." This estimated requirement will, of course, be modified by existing industrial and agricultural conditions. It is estimated that 75,000 cars will go into the export trade. Adding these together, we find a demand for approximately 2,525,000 passenger cars.

In the commercial car field, the percentage of trucks needed for replacement is not quite so large as in the passenger car field. Approximately 125,000 commercial cars will be replaced during the coming twelve months, if business conditions continue on a fairly even keel. A demand for 135,000 trucks for new owners is anticipated. About 15,000 trucks will be sufficient for the export trade. This brings the total estimated requirements for 1923 to 275,000 commercial cars, making a total of 2,800,000 passenger cars and trucks, or an increase of about 10 per cent over last year's production.

Small Cars Predominate

Of the estimated output of 2,525,000 passenger cars for 1923, Ford may be counted upon to turn out at least 1,150,000. The General Motors units should collectively build about 460,000 passenger cars. A selected group of other leaders, consisting of Durant,

Don't Give Strangers Free Rides, Warning Issued by Auto Club

Serious consequences, culminating in the death of Mr. Leslie L. Nichols on a lonely desert highway near the Imperial Valley are resulting throughout this part of the state from the mistaken philanthropy of motorists giving strangers free rides.

According to officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California this practice has never been so dangerous as at the present time. Highways in the west during the winter months are infested with hard boilled and desperate characters who make it a practice to beg rides from motorists with a deliberate intent of committing robbery, say Club officers. If necessary those characters will not stop at murder.

A widespread campaign to discourage the giving of free rides to strangers is to be launched by the Club this winter in connection with its safety bureau work. Age is no indication of the desperate designs of these people an autoist is liable to pick up it is pointed out. The two boys who it is alleged have confessed to the murder of Mr. Nichols on the desert road have given their ages as less than eighteen.

In the cases of school boys and girls who beg rides from the side of the road, greater harm is done to them than to the motorist who grants their wish as statistics prove that vagrancy and runaways are encouraged by such so-called kindly acts.

Don't give strangers free rides, urges the club, for, in addition to the ethics of the matter and the personal danger to the driver, there is a possibility of a serious damage suit if the passenger should be injured in an accident due to the negligence of the operator of the car.

MUCH IN DEMAND

Real winter weather has added to transportation difficulties in Detroit. Body builders are behind in deliveries, and this has allowed orders to pile up. Closed cars are in heavy demand, and there is also a decided turning toward the new sport models.

Tiremakers are increasing their schedules to replenish their stocks in anticipation of a general speeding up of the industry again.

Don't go unprepared in the way of tires or tire repair equipment. Don't try to economize by going without a spare tire or tube.

Only Woman's Hand Can Add The 'Nice Touch'

"One would never think that these little accessories could so enhance the car's appearance and add to the comfort of motoring," exclaimed Miss Alberta Vaughn, fair motor devotee. "And they are so easy to apply, too," added sister Adamae, as they applied the finishing touches to their new car with fittings purchased from the Western Auto Supply Company.

Women are the deciding factor in nearly 90 per cent of automobile sales and these fair motorists, too, are bringing the equipment and entire fittings for the automobile to a higher standard.

Seeking distinction in her automobile finds Madame carefully selecting accessories that add beauty to her car and really change it from the so-called "medium or low priced car" to that of the "custom built" class.

Her natural penchant for beauty and convenience has been reflected in the growing popularity of certain fitments she may add to her car. The luxury and comfort of the enclosed car is heightened by flower vases, for particularly is a bouquet of flowers attractive to the feminine eye. Interior mirrors greatly enhance the car's appearance as well as being a means of keeping a vigilant watch on machines coming up in the rear and milady, naturally inclined to the various uses of the mirror, readily takes to this accessory.

Aids Gear Shifts

Comfort and utility must also be incorporated in the various fitments she may choose for her car. With gear shifting becoming more and more frequent through greater congestion of traffic, there has been a long felt want for some device to aid in this operation. The gear shift lever that is inconvenient for the operator to reach, places her at a disadvantage at a time when ease and simplicity of control are most vital.

This difficulty has been overcome, however, and hair motor devotees may now shift gears in ease, thanks to a gear shift extension that fastens to the lever and extends upward and toward the driver to the natural position of her lowered hand, causing her to perform this operation with perfect ease.

Adds to Appearance

Safety and beauty go hand in hand when step plates are considered. This popular addition when fastened to the running board of the car adds very materially to the appearance of her car. They have neat aluminum frames and the rubber mats serve as a foot scrapper. "Kick plates," too, beautify the car's appearance and also keep the apron of the car from being scratched upon entering.

Beautiful in appearance and design is the new monogramed locking radiator cap and women motorists are quick to grasp the value of this accessory. It is a combination cap and lock in itself and when equipped with a motormeter topped off with a graceful speed nymph or diving girl, greatly enhances the car's appearance.

Visor Proves Popular

Possibly the most recent innovation in equipment is the Pyralin sun and rain visor which protects the driver from the glaring rays of the sun and keeps the rain from obscuring her view.

Among her personal driving effects, driving gloves and gauntlets are rapidly gaining favor. Driving gloves offer protection to the hands as well as against the elements.

Other accessories that she may add to her car, adding to comfort and utility, are such items as bumpers, spotlights, tire covers, seat cushions, silk curtains, etc., and from the activity in these various departments at the Western Auto Supply Company the "dolling up" process has by no means reached its limit.

Truly "day by day, in every way" milady's so-called "low" or "medium priced" car is rapidly becoming a "custom built" of her own building.

Auto Industry Leads, Figuring Dollar Value

New York Auto Club Has 30,000 Members

Advices just received from Paul Archibald, secretary of the Automobile Club of New York, show that over 30,000 members are now officially enrolled with the New York City organization. An intensive membership drive is being continued—the objective being the 50,000 mark by June 30, next. Many interesting announcements will be made by Secretary Archibald on the character of the new headquarters which are now being enlarged in the Hotel Ansonia, with special entrances, members' parking spaces and modern organization methods of club service.

FIRST AUTO IN 1795

The first form of an automobile made its appearance in the United States in 1795, according to an advertisement appearing in the Columbian Sentinel of Boston, October 14, 1795. It was heralded as the first moving carriage to appear in this country and the admission charge was three shillings.

INLAND AIR SERVICE

The first inland air service for regular passenger traffic in England has been established between Manchester and London.

Automobile Club of Southern California Not in Affiliation

Scores of motorists are making complaint that they have been solicited to join an "automobile club" under the impression that they were affiliating with the Automobile Club of Southern California when in reality they come to find out they have joined another and less important organization.

In order to protect the motoring public from advances of solicitors who secure members to other organizations under the impression that they are joining the large Southern California Club, this organization has just issued a warning to automobile owners to examine all receipts given by mysterious or casual solicitors.

In some instances where motorists have questioned such receipts saying, "This doesn't look like the Automobile Club of Southern California," the solicitor has said: "Well, we are all the same anyway as we all belong to the parent organization."

Officials of the Auomobile Club of Southern California wish to be clearly understood that the organization is affiliated in no way with other clubs, although it does exchange all courtesies with certain other organizations who are known to be in good standing throughout the United States.

Do not join blindly any "automobile club" without knowing just exactly what club you are joining, is the terse warning just issued. This applies to garages, hotels and other similar business enterprises who are solicited for official membership.

Tires and Accessories Show Steady Growth

The automotive industry continues to forge ahead of all other industries, according to figures recently given out. In 1922 the value of automobiles, tires and accessories manufactured reached the vast sum of nearly $5,000,000,000, and with exception of agriculture this industry is now far above all others.

The estimated value of the 1922 motor vehicle output exceeded $1,400,000,000; tires, $675,000,000, and parts and accessories more than $2,750,000,000. Hardly more than 80,000 dealers, and others, distribute this huge business, as against nearly 200,000 grocers whose stocks may not reach the automotive figure.

KEEP MIXTURE LEAN

When it is necessary to employ the low gear for a considerable period it is possible to obviate the overheating that would ordinarily result by keeping the mixture in the leanest possible condition.

AUTOS IN AMERICA

Only 9 per cent of the 11,000,000 motor vehicles in the United States are in cities with over 500,000 population. Thirty-three per cent are in towns with fewer than 1000 people.

HUGE PRODUCTION BEING PREDICTED

Trade Very Optimistic Over 1923 Outlook; Demand Steadily Increasing

As the automobile business comes into its twenty-fourth year and gets a more mature perspective on its progress, says Charles Clifton, president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, it is able to see that among the fundamental currents working for its success are these:

One. Public demand for individual flexible transportation.

Two. The time saving value of the motor car and motor truck which pays for their expense.

Three. The fact that the prosperity of the motor vehicle business is an aid to general prosperity.

Four. The definite organization of the national highway program which has resulted in 10,000 miles of new roads being built in 1922.

Five. The replacement market for cars and trucks going out of use which should call for about 1,800,000 motor vehicles in the coming year.

Six. Growing need for motor transportation in foreign countries.

Seven. Improved engineering and service stations, which make the modern car and truck a constantly reliable means of transportation.

Sees Gradual Increase

"These forces are fundamental, and they will continue to pile up a substantial demand for motor cars and motor trucks as the years go on," Mr. Clifton says.

"The year 1923 will be one of steady prosperity. The production should be in the neighborhood of two and a half million vehicles. This is the 1922 figure, and the 1923 output may go 10 per cent to 25 per cent ahead of it, as some economists predict. On the other hand, the 1922 total included some motor vehicles which would normally have been purchased in 1921 had general business conditions been favorable.

"The outlook for 1923 is good. Farming conditions are reported to be improved. As one-third of all the cars are owned in rural sections, the recovery of the industry's best customer should have a favorable effect on the business.

"General business is on the increase. The automobile industry may justly claim some credit for this, as it was the first to show a marked improvement. Further, the production of increased units of transportation creates economic wealth through the time saving and rent saving value. This has been particularly noticeable in the truck field where the railroads are using motor trucks to relieve congestion at terminals and in the passenger car market where the motor car is opening up new suburban areas, bringing the farmer into closer touch with the town, increasing the efficiency range of the doctor and enabling the salesman to

Real Welcome to Be Given Auto Tourists

The doors of California are to be swung wide and a welcome extended to every tourist who wishes to bask in its sunshine and enjoy its flowers, according to Will H. Marsh, director of the division of motor vehicles.

The system of compelling those who enter California's borders to submit their cars to officers of the department for immediate engine inspection, is to be abandoned. Residents of other states entering California will be asked to register their machines and will be granted an emblem from the state of California showing such registration, upon proper identification. Until they desire to register their machine under the laws of California or transfer it to a resident of the state, engine inspection will not be demanded. For this reason the head of the department sounds a warning to all dealers and to all contemplated purchasers of machines registered from other states, that no such purchase should be made unless the machine has been properly registered under the laws of California. To do so is taking a long chance which may result in loss to the buyer.

The tourist privilege is granted in order that the visitor to California may travel its highways unmolested by traffic officers, but such registration in no wise guarantees the title of the car in its operator.

LONGEVITY SPRINGS

Springs should be taken, apart once a year and graphited. This will keep them flexible, and afford the car the protection for which the springs were designed, instead of getting dirty, rusty and stiffening very perceptibly.

AIR MAIL SERVICE

Argentina has established a daily air mail service between Buenos Aires and Montevideo.

Bond With License Is Plan in Michigan

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 3.—Automobile insurance underwritten by the state and required of every automobile driver who takes out a license, with the object of protecting the public from personal and property damage caused by irresponsible automobile drivers may come out of the present session of the legislature.

Representative James A. Burns of Detroit has a bill requiring every driver to post a bond to cover damage he may do with his automobile, the bond to be dated when he takes out his annual license. Governor Alex J. Groesbeck favors having the state sell bonds to the drivers.

THE STUDEBAKER NEW LIGHT-SIX TOURING $975

THE 1923 Series Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car was shown for the first time at the New York Automobile Show.

Many pronounced this car the most striking feature of the show. It was certainly the center of the crowd.

The Light-Six Touring Car is beautiful, roomy and comfortable. In design, mechanical excellence and equipment it is a worthy member of the world's greatest line of quality motor cars.

The new body is all steel, with wide, deep and comfortable seats, upholstered, as usual, in genuine leather. The rear seat is 43½ inches wide, which provides ease and comfort for three adults. Cushions are ten inches deep. The Light-Six Touring Car is as comfortable as that favorite chair in your living room.

The one-piece, rain-proof windshield, with cowl lights in base, and the cowl ventilator are improvements for moderate priced cars originated by Studebaker.

The Light-Six chassis, the dependability of which has been established in the hands of 100,000 owners, remains practically unchanged. The body, windshield, radiator, cowl and fittings are the new features.

The name STUDEBAKER on an automobile is assurance of satisfaction.

New all-steel body. Upholstered in genuine leather. One-piece windshield with attractive cowl lights set in base. Quick-action cowl ventilator. Large rectangular window in rear curtain. Curtains, bound on three sides by steel rods, open with doors. Door pocket flaps with weights to hold them in shape. Thief-proof transmission lock.

MANY CHANGES IN CHEVROLET AUTO

Improvements by Engineers Stamp New Models As High Grade Cars

"The principal reason for the growing popularity of the new model Chevrolets is the fact that the entire car has been re-designed and re-modeled, to overcome the defects that had caused trouble to the firm's engineers," declared C. L. Smith, Orange and Colorado, in explaining the jump in sales totals reported by the company. "In the top and body there were 22 changes, in the front axle and wheels 10, in the rear axle six, in the transmission seven, in the motor ten, and in the chassis 13 changes, making a total of 68 changes in the 1922 models."

"But even these alterations did not satisfy the engineers," continued Mr. Smith. "The 1923 model embraces 26 additional improvements, which place the Chevrolet in the very front rank of up-to-the-minute cars in every detail."

Mr. Smith emphasized the economy that has been effected in the assembling of Chevrolets by the erection beside the firm's plants of Fisher Body Company factories, where the bodies are fitted to the cars in larger quantities than was possible before this system was adopted, with the result that freight and handling charges have been slashed to the lowest possible figures.

PACKER CO. GETS LIGHT 6 MODELS

Latest Studebaker Types Are Shown by Local Agent in Salesrooms

Delivery of a big shipment of the new Studebaker Light Six models has permitted the Packer Auto company, 245 South Brand, to catch up on some of their orders, according to Steve Packer, manager of the firm, and this car, which proved to be the sensation of the recent New York automobile show, is gaining steadily in favor with the motoring public in this territory, especially since the new models were placed on display.

The carload shipments of the 1923 models have enabled the firm to keep abreast of the demand, but it is necessary, Mr. Packer declares, that prospective buyers place their orders at once in order to secure delivery, which cannot be made in less than two or three weeks, and for this reason he urges that reservations be made at once.

The Studebaker factory is cooperating in every possible way to help the local agency supply the orders that are being placed with it, but the country-wide demand for these cars is taxing every facility of the firm to the utmost. Even with the enlargements that have been made in the Studebaker plant it is becoming increasingly difficult to secure a larger allotment, and buyers, says Mr. Packer, should make sure of their cars by ordering now.

NEW BUICK FOUR COUPE IS SHOWN

Many Refinements of the Latest Model Lend Air of Distinction

The new 4-cylinder Model 36 Buick coupe, that is now on display in the salesrooms of Tanner Hall, Ltd., 237 South Brand, is rated as one of the most distinctive cars of the present season, according to Ray L. Galvin, who is enthusiastic over the extra features that have been added to make the new Buick coupe an outstanding value in the realm of closed cars. The ventilating system that has been added lends comfort to the occupants, while the appearance of the car is marked by a purity of line that makes it stand out in any company.

A number of important changes have also been made in the body of the car, in the cowl and in the radiator, that give the new coupe a longer and lower appearance than previous years' models, and the claim that the 1923 Buick models are the finest cars on the market today is largely substantiated by the appearance and the innate merit of the coupe.

Deliveries, according to Mr. Galvin, require from two to three weeks, and prospective buyers should allow themselves sufficient time when placing their orders for their new cars.

FOR LEGLESS DRIVER

An automobile, capable of being operated by a legless man, has been invented by Arthur M. Van Rensselaer of New York City. The machine is a motor-propelled, three-wheeled vehicle, thirty-two inches wide and seventy-six inches long, carrying three persons. The controls are entirely hand operated.

REGRINDS CYLINDERS

An appliance made of honing stones has been invented that can be attached to any electric drill to regrind automobile cylinders.

VERSATILITY OF MOTOR CAR TOLD

Variety of Auto's Functions Explained by Local Maxwell Dealer

"When you stop to think of it, it is amazing how versatile is the modern automobile," says Lyman P. Clark of the Glendale Motor Car Company, 124 West Colorado street, Maxwell dealers.

"It is a remarkable fact that every automobile is a machine that makes light, heat, power and transportation, all within its own mechanism, and few automobile owners ever stop to consider what a marvelous machine they are driving.

"We are not satisfied with these mechanical wonders, but are demanding and getting a degree of refinement and comfort that compares with a drawing room in a fine residence.

"In this establishment we welcome an opportunity to show to young and old alike the new Maxwell models and to explain their many detailed refinements that surprise even veteran motorists.

"It keeps one busy to keep up with the automobile in these days of development and invention. As we see it, the local automobile dealer owes it to his community to help enlighten all, regardless of whether they are car prospects or not."

REO FACTORY TO BUILD ADDITION

Will Provide Facility for Storing and Shipping 3000 Autos

Work on a new storage and shipping building to cost in the neighborhood of a half-million dollars and to have approximately 640,000 square feet of floor space, will be started by the Reo Motor Car Company at Lansing, Mich., by the first of March, according to information received from the factory by the local agent, Harry E. White, Inc., San Fernando and Braud.

The new building is to be three stories, 577 feet long and 365 feet wide, and will include a train shed which will accommodate 72 freight cars at one time. The train shed covers two siding each of the Michigan Central, New York Central and Grand Trunk railroads.

It is the plan to use the building for both shipping and storage operations. It will also include the export department where cars will be prepared and crated for export. At the present time, output for large shipments must be stored in the open and about the city and shop. The new building will provide storage space for 3000 vehicles at one time. The storage stock is drawn upon in making shipments which are packed under cover on the company's own siding.

GREASE PIT FOR CARS IS READY

C. & B. Service Station Will Permit Motor Owners Use of Facilities

The oiling pit that has been constructed by the C. & B Service station, at the corner of South Brand and Colorado, will be ready for patrons today, according to B. H. Anderson, and a special feature in connection with this service will be that owners of cars can drain and grease their own automobiles if they so desire. For those who do not wish to do the work themselves there will be plenty of expert help around the service station.

The C. & B. Service station this week snapped up another big lot of Oldfield tires in all sizes, and they are offering these at bargain prices, as long as they last, which will not be long, according to Mr. Anderson, who says that the Oldfield tires are proving to be one of the best sellers on the market today.

The buying facilities of the C. & B. Service station permit the purchase of large stocks of tires that are constantly being offered for sale by dealers who are cramped for ready money, and the savings effected in this manner are passed on to the patrons of the local firm, who are satisfied to make a quick turnover of their investment at a smaller profit than is usually taken on such lines of accessories.

MOTOR CAR GEARING

The power of an engine is often taxed by means of gearing it low at the rear axle. When buying a car it is wise to find out what the reduction ratio is. If the reduction is very low a comparatively light engine will pull considerable weight uphill in "high" because the car is really not in high gear.

If the engine is of large dimensions and geared very low it will perform beautifully on hills and will have long life, but it will be a glutton for gas and will not usually give more than sixty miles per hour speed. If the engine is of small dimension and geared low it will perform well enough on hills for a time and will be economical on gas, but it will wear out quickly and will not develop speed.

Some Timely Hints to Prevent Auto Crash

There are a number of things that would prevent serious accidents if motorists would only bear in mind and the following list of a few of them has been issued to remind automobile owners to be careful and avoid disasters:

(1) Drive carefully: "More haste, less speed."

(2) Do not exceed the speed limit, even in the open country.

(3) Examine steering gear once a week and test brakes every time you take the car out.

(4) Watch the traffic officers and do exactly as they say. You will be richer at the end of the year.

(5) Do not trust the other fellow to do the right thing; sometimes he doesn't.

(6) Give trains the right of way; they are stubborn things to argue with.

(7) Cross tracks in second speed.

(8) Do not neglect the hand signals and watch for the other fellow's.

(9) Use the gears as a brake going down hills.

(10) Paste this on the windshield: "It's better to be safe than sorry."

A cold engine has practically no power.

Take Battery Reading Before Adding Water

In taking battery readings with the hydrometer the operation should be performed before the distilled water is added to the solution, which will otherwise be diluted and a wrong reading given. Also after the water has been put in it takes some time to mix with the acid. The water, being lighter, stays on top, and if the hydrometer is used say an hour after the water has been added it will take up only a weak solution, which is not the real one

PROVE EXCELLENT

Spring check leaves are excellent things, particularly for country driving. They are, in reality, snubbers, preventing up-kick, yet not curtailing the downward motion of the body of the car. Practically speaking, they are half-length, almost flat leaves, placed on the top of springs. When the rebound comes they hold the body in gentle check and are ideal for fast going over a rough road.

TIP WORTH WHILE

It is a good plan to remove the drain plug or drain valve from the gasoline tank and carburetor occasionally to run off any sediment which may collect there.

The WORLD OVER
By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.
PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The Far Western colleges never yet have figured in any of the national collegiate golf championships and there are a number of graduates from the various Oregon, Washington and California institutions who also are golf enthusiasts, who are anxious to see their alma maters on the golf map of the country.

As yet no concerted action has been taken in the matter. It has all been preliminary and informal talk, but it is not unlikely that, in the near future, there will be some specific action taken looking toward promoting a greater interest in this sport in the universities.

It is recognized that before any national ideas can be entertained that the individual colleges must be urged to take a greater interest in the game. There is no Pacific coast intercollegiate golf championship event at the present time, and this would have to be the first step taken by way of organization.

While links are available to all the colleges, these are club or municipal links and it would be necessary to build good courses for the individual institutions. Of course the great question will be, where will the money come from? But, if there is a sufficient interest dormant to be roused, this hurdle may not be an insurmountable one. At all events, it would not be surprising to see something brought about. If not this year, certainly within the next couple of years.

There has been a very wide divergence of opinion as to what effect the amputation of a finger on the racquet hand of William Tilden, the singles and doubles tennis champion, will have on his future play. There are those who have expressed themselves positively to the effect that his game will be impaired. On the other hand, equally competent critics have demonstrated to their own satisfaction that it will have no effect whatever.

Under the circumstances, the best possible way of determining what is going to happen will be to wait until the season is on and to watch the play of the champion. As far as the writer is concerned, it does not seem likely if the finger has healed properly that it will interfere with his play. On the other hand, if there is any tenderness due to any defect in the healing process, it will be another story. On this is what will hinge the result of what Tilden is capable of when he again enters into competition. And thus, it will only be under the gruelling conditions of competition that any tenderness will be discovered. His preliminary games during the season ought to fit him for the crucial tests. At least, he should know long before these tests whether or not he is able to meet the emergency.

RECORD LISTS UP FOR PIN BATTLES

More Than Thousand 5-Men Teams Already Enter for International Meet

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 3.—With entries for the annual international tournament of the American Bowling Congress, closing next Friday night, indications are that Milwaukee will entertain from March 10 to April 8 a record-breaking assemblage of athletes.

More than 1,200 five-men teams, a new A. B. C. record in itself, have already sent in their entries, and there is certain to be at least 300 more quintets who will make their entry in the few days left to get under the wire, say those in charge.

Thus there will be approximately 10,000 followers of the tenpin game on the morning of February 10, all set and waiting for another month to roll by before they can start their pilgrimage to the shrine of maple and mineralite.

Hundreds Entered 4

Secretary A. L. Langtry recently declared 1200 teams would comprise the total entry. With this mark virtually passed he has advanced the goal to 1400 teams. which, in the opinions of various tournament officials, will likewise be passed.

Chicago, but a few hours' ride from this city, has nearly 300 teams scheduled now, this number being 100 more than that city has ever sent to a tourney. Buffalo, which is seeking the 1924 event, has entered 30. Cleveland is sending 30, Columbus, 20; Cincinnati, 10; Detroit, 40; St. Louis, 36; St. Paul and Minneapolis, 50; Erie, 15; New York City, 10; Kansas City, 10; Pittsburg, 20; Philadelphia, 6; Indianapolis, 25; Toledo, 20; Akron, 10; Omaha, 6, and then there are many smaller cities, with entries ranging from 1 to 10 teams.

Milwaukee's contribution is the largest of any city, 500 quintets having been entered.

Jacksonville, Florida, has the "Far South" entry of two teams, New Haven, Connecticut, has the "Far East" entry, with one team. Los Angeles, California, represents the "Far West," with one team, while Winnipeg, Canada, is the "Far North" entrant, with two teams.

Duluth is returning to the A. B. C. limelight after an absence of 10 years, while the State of Wisconsin, outside of Milwaukee, is entering 10 times as many teams as it has heretofore.

Offer Big Prizes

All of which means there will be a rich "pot" for the pinsters to go after, the total of which will run close to $65,000, or $14,000 more than ever before.

This means a much longer prize list than usual for it has been the plan of the prize committee for several years back to not increase the amount of leading prizes, but rather to spread the awards for the various places in the four events over a greater territory.

Next week the laying of 24 new alleys on which to stage the event will be started in the big auditorium here. These will be ready two days prior to the tourney opening on March 10 and will be well dried out by the time the first squad of bowlers are ready to roll the initial balls.

10 PER CENT SALE INCREASE IS DUE

Figures of 1922 Will Be Passed This Year, Is Journal's Claim

Dodge, Studebaker, Overland, Maxwell, Hudson-Essex and Nash, should collectively turn out 725,000. This would leave a total production of approximately 190,000 for all other manufacturers of passenger cars in business.

It is expected that of the cars built in 1923, 34 per cent will sell for less than $500, 33 per cent will be in the $500 to $1000 class, 19 per cent in the $1000 to $1500, 7 per cent in the $1500 to $2000 class, 3 per cent in the $2000 to $2500 class, and 4 per cent in the class selling above $2500.

Of the estimated output of 275,000 commercial cars for 1923, Ford will produce about 125,000. General Motors should turn out about 15,000. A group of leading truck companies, consisting of Dodge, White, Reo, International Harvester, Republic, Mack, Packard and Autocar, should collectively build about 75,000. This leaves a total production of only about 60,000 for all other truck makers.

40,000 Car, Truck Dealers

There are now 40,889 automobile and motor truck dealers in the United States. Of these, 2485 are in cities of over 500,000 population, 3481 are in cities with populations between 100,000 and 500,000, 8192 are in cities with populations between 10,000 and 100,000, while 26,371, or more than half the total, are in small towns having a population of less than 10,000.

These figures do not include supply stores, garages, etc., of which there are over 40,000, making a total of more than 80,000 sales and service units devoted to the automobile.

Latest complete registration figures also serve to emphasize the growing importance of the small town market for automotive products.

An estimated increase of 10 per cent in sales for 1923 over the best previous year in history should enable both dealer and maker to become more firmly established along sound, sane, conservative lines. The basic position of the automotive industry is stronger at the present time than that of any other great industrial enterprise in America.

National Amateur Heavyweight Champion John Wilmans of the San Francisco Olympic club will defend his title at the A. A. U. national boxing championships next month. Wilmans won the national title last year when he defeated the title holder, Gordon Muncie, of the New York A. C.

There are a few people in California who think that Wilmans may eventually be groomed for the world professional heavy title now held by Dempsey. There are many others, however, who think that Wilmans is not logical timber for the professional title. Those who argue that Wilmans may develop into a world heavy aspirant point to the rise of Floyd Johnson, now making a name for himself in the east and frequently mentioned as a possible opponent for Dempsey. The decision gained by Johnson over Brennan a couple of weeks ago has brought the California heavyweight into the limelight more than any other fight he has had.

Friends of Wilmans point to the fact that the Olympic club amateur national champion has fought Floyd Johnson twice—when the latter was in the amateur ranks—and each time has had little trouble in landing the decision. That is true enough, but the exhibition by the pair when Wilmans beat Johnson for the Pacific association district branch heavy title of the A. A. U. was one of the worst that has ever been seen. Johnson is said to have greatly improved since he went into the professional ranks and people on the Pacific coast are willing to grant that on his recent fights.

If Wilmans is to be pointed for the professional ring he will have to show a vast improvement over his work to date. He has not had a fight since last June at which time the national amateur champions were brought to Oakland, Cal., for a tourney. Gordon Muncie was anxious to get another crack at Wilmans, but did not get it. In the preliminaries Muncie lost the decision to "Soldier" John Courtwright, one of Uncle Sam's soldiers at the Presidio of San Francisco. The next night Wilmans met the soldier and there has still been a continuation of the discussion as to whether Wilmans was entitled to the decision he was given over the soldier. Courtwright, who at the time was the U. S. army heavy title holder, gave Wilmans as fine a boxing lesson as he has ever had and it was with difficulty that the national amateur champion managed to stay on his feet for the four rounds.

At that Wilmans has been training assiduously under the coaching of George Green, who is better known to ring followers as the Original Young Corbett. Green has been boxing instructor at the Olympic club for a number of years and is busy working on Wilmans in preparation for the coming national championships at Boston. Wilmans will go east with the moral support of every fight fan on the Pacific coast. He was the first coast man to bring a national title to the Pacific coast and his friends believe he will repeat this year. The coming fights in Boston will tend to show just what improvement the amateur champion has made in the last year and if his showing is impressive there are many who believe Wilmans will very soon announce his entrance into the professional ring.

International Code of Tennis Rules Planned

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The acceptance of an international code, recommended at the recent London conference, will go up for consideration today at the annual meeting here of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

Revised regulations for governing play in the Davis cup series and the proposal that the association join the international tennis federation will also be passed upon.

The plan, whereby zones will be introduced in the preliminary rounds of the Davis cup matches, is said to have united approval and its acceptance is regarded as a formality, as is the election of Dwight F. Davis, donor of the famous cup, as president of the association.

Dundee Whips Filipino In Sensational Battle

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Scoring four knockdowns in the last three rounds, Johnny Dundee got the decision over Elino Flores, the Filipino, at the end of fifteen rounds, at Madisn Square garden last night and thus retained title to the so-called junior lightweight championship.

Flores was dropped twice in the thirteenth round, one in the fourteenth and again in the final round, barely lasting the distance.

Senator Walker Scores Muldoon for Plot to Banish Colored Boxer

By DAVIS J. WALSH
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. — Convince Senator James J. Walker that William, "The Muldoon," is actuated by racial discrimination in issuing his decree against a Dempsey-Wills bout here and there will be no boxing in New York at all. The senator, riding high, wide and handsome over feverish opposition, sponsored the law that made boxing possible here, and he will take steps to repeal it with equal celerity and determination if it develops that the iron duke of pugilism is using his charges of commercialism as a blind to banish Wills to the outer darkness.

This much the senator made clear in a statement issued today, in which he not only spoke in accents loud and lasting for Harry Wills, but deprecated Muldoon's fear of the harm that might be done boxing by promoters bidding in terms of millions for Dempsey's services.

"If a Dempsey-Wills match is barred here because of any discrimination in the matter of race, I will immediately begin the task of abolishing boxing in New York," declared Senator Jimmy. "I could not allow my name to remain on a law that would thus discriminate against any American."

Colorado Folks Prefer Luxuries to Bathtubs

AULT, Colo., Feb. 3—Residents of this rural community enjoy luxuries more than "necessities," according to a recent survey by the Colorado agricultural college, which showed that more money is spent for tobacco than for churches, and more for automobile pleasure trips than for taxes. The survey includes a population of approximately 200 persons, 83 per cent of whom had automobiles, while only 19 per cent of the homes were equipped with bath tubs.

Cars at Best Values

"Another factor which should tend to maintain the rate of output in the motor vehicle plants is the fact that automobiles are now being offered to the public at the best values on record.

"The automobile industry, like others, has been seriously handicapped during the last several months by freight car shortage. With production exceeding records the industry has resorted to the use of open freight cars and extensive driving over the highways from factories to dealers. Were it not for these expedients, the industry would have been seriously handicapped, as indicated by the fact that of the 1922 production of about 2,500,000 machines, over 750,000 were taken on their own wheels from main plants and assembling plants to the market.

"Twenty-five service associations have been organized during the last three years. These are societies in various cities devoted to the improvement of the repair business, with the aim of rendering more economical and more prompt care for the owner's car.

"The question of automobile legislation, both on taxes and traffic, is in the foreground at present, with forty-three state legislatures scheduled to meet this year."

BOSTON, Feb. 3. — New records are expected of the world's foremost track stars at the 34th annual track meet of the Boston Athletic association here tonight. Joie Ray, Jim Connolly, Leroy Brown, Loren Murchison and Dick Landon, who recently established new records at New York, are to perform.

Ray and Connolly will be in the mile run, Brown and Landon, who both broke the world's indoor record in the running high jump, will meet in the running high jump. Brown and Landon at New York cleared six feet 5 1-4 inches, a new world's record. Osborne of Illinois, who jumped six feet, 4 1-2 inches, tied with Alberts at that figure. Jake Driscoll, former Boston college star, will be opposed by Allan B. Heiffrich, Penn State flash, in the invitation race.

RESEATING VALVES WITHOUT ABRASIVES
Cleaning Them Will Sometimes Restore Their Tightness

Particles of incrustations from time to time become detached from the piston heads and other combustion space surfaces and are carried in the exhaust gas current. Most of these pass the valves, but some are caught between the exhaust valves and their seats and become lodged there, thus holding them open slightly. This is the most usual cause of valve leaks and, if the foreign material were promptly removed tightness would be restored, but otherwise burning gas can escape past the valve "scaling" it and its seat and forming "pits" where the particles happen to be. It is sometimes possible to remove the attached foreign matter, that is holding a valve open without removing the cylinder head and when this can be accomplished, soon after the leakage commences, burning and pitting of the metal and warping of the valve head can be prevented and the necessity of regrinding can be deferred. In the case of an overhead valve engine, the following treatment is worth trying in any cylinder which has recently developed a valve leak: Put the cylinder on its firing point, with both valves closed and the piston away up, remove the valve springs (if necessary), fill the cylinder with kerosene through the plug hole until it will take no more, push down the exhaust-valve, until it is in the kerosene, close it and rotate it on its seat just as if one were grinding it, repeating these two latter operations until it is believed that the seat is clean. Treat the inlet valve the same way, if desired, then suck out all the kerosene with a long spouted oil gun or crank slowly, with the spark plug still out until the cylinder is nearly free of liquid. Each cylinder with leaky valves can be treated in the same way. As the kerosene will wash the cylinders dry and partly escape into the crankcase, this treatment should be applied just before renewing the oil.

Door Won't Stay Latched

D. B. writes: Occasionally, when I am driving on a rough road, one of the rear doors of my car comes open, although it seems to have been latched all right. Can this be prevented?

Answer: Probably the body springs a little, when the car goes over a bump, and the distance between the post on which the door is hung and that to which it latches is momentarily increased allowing the striker to come out of the striker plate. If you can arrange matters so that the door fits a little closer, you may prevent this trouble. Sometimes this can be done by rearranging the shims that are usually found between the body sills and the side frame members with relation to the bolts that hold the sills down or by providing a body bolt between the two door posts in case there is none. The sills can be made to spring a little in the required place and direction by a tightly set up bolt and a shim at the proper distance on each side of it. Perhaps you can put a shim under the striker plate of this lock, to set it out toward the door a little and temporarily remove your trouble.

Kerosene in the Crankcase

H. H. S. asks: Is it a good thing to wash out the crankcase of an engine with kerosene, every few times the oil is changed, or not? Some advise me to do it and some say that it spoils the new oil.

Answer: If all the kerosene can be drained out, as is practically the case with an engine having a lubricating system of strictly pressure feed type, it is all right, but in engines having circulating splash lubrication, with splash pockets of considerable capacity, the kerosene fills them, when the engine is turned over, and it is not readily drained from them, but remains there to thin the fresh oil. It is sometimes attempted to empty the pockets of kerosene by running the front of the car up a steep incline. As an alternative, after all kerosene has drained out that will do so, enough oil may be placed in the sump to reach the pump intake, the engine run long enough to displace the kerosene in the troughs and the crankcase drained again before filling with new oil. A cheap oil can be used for elimiating the kerosene.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM

Approximately 180,000 miles of federal aid highways, costing $3,000,000,000, are to be built in the United States in the next twenty years. When this great job is completed, the transportation facilities of the country will far exceed those of any other nation.

PRESSURE SYSTEMS

Always see that the cap is screwed down extra tight, and watch the pressure gauge to see if the check valve is leaking air. If it is, a few squirts of gasoline may be all that is necessary to clear it of dust.

"Knocking"

There are different kinds of knockers and knocking—but that which interests the motorist is the racking which the mechanical parts of your motor experience from what is generally known as "knocking."

"Knocking" is the result of pre-ignition of gasoline, and occurs generally from unvaporized gasoline getting into the cylinders. The point of importance to note is that this trouble, and most others, are brought about by gasoline which doesn't vaporize properly and evenly. No motor ride can be enjoyable, to say nothing of its economy, if your motor performance is not steady—stable. Start right by using and these troubles will be minimized in any instance. You will find less difficulty in starting your engine; you will have less carbonizing of cylinders and spark plugs; there will be no "knocking"—you will have practically prevented the dilution of your lubricant, from which cause untold troubles arise.

For five minutes the silence of the night was unbroken, then from the east came a single shot, followed immediately by a scattering fusiliade and a chorus of hoarse cries.

Billy Byrne smiled. The sentry resumed indications of quickness. From the barracks beyond the guardhouse came sharp commands and the sounds of men running. From the opposite end of the town the noise of battle swelled up to ominous proportions.

Billy heard the soldiers stream from their quarters and a moment later saw them trot up the street at the double. Everyone was moving toward the opposite end of the town except the lone sentinel before the guardhouse. The moment seemed propitious for his attempt.

Billy peered around the corner of the guardhouse. Conditions were just as he had pictured they would be. The sentry stood gazing in the direction of the firing, his back toward the guardhouse door and Billy.

With a bound the American cleared the space between himself and the unspspeeting and unfortunate soldier. The butt of the heavy revolver fell, almost noiselessly, upon the back of the sentry's head, and the man sank to the ground without even a moan.

Turning to the door Billy knocked the bar from its place, the door swung in and Bridge slipped through to liberty.

"Quick!" said Billy. "Follow me," and turned at a rapid run toward the south end of the town. He made no effort now to conceal his movements. Speed was the only essential, and the two covered the ground swiftly and openly without any attempt to take advantage of cover.

They reached Billy's horse unnoticed, and a moment later were trotting toward the west to circle the town and regain the trail to the north and safety.

To the east they heard the diminishing rifle fire of the combatants as Pesita's men fell steadily back before the defenders, and drew them away from Cuivaca in accordance with Billy's plan.

"Like takin' candy from a baby," said Billy, when the flickering lights of Cuivaca shone to the south of them, and the road ahead lay clear to the rendezvous of the brigands.

"Yes," agreed Bridge; "but what I'd like to know, Billy, is how you found out I was there."

"Penelope," said Byrne laughing.

"Penelope?" queried Bridge. "I'm not at all sure that I follow you, Billy."

"Well, seein' as you're sittin' on behind you can't be leadin' me," returned Billy; "but cuttin' the kid it was a skirt that tipped at off to me where you was—the beautiful senorita of El Orobo Rancho. I think Jose called her. Now are you hep?"

Bridge gave an exclamation of astonishment. "God bless her!" he said. "She did that for me?"

"She sure did," Billy assured him, "an I'll bet an iron case she's a-waitin' for you there with buds o' roses in her hair an' kisses on her mouth, you son-of-a-gun, you." Billy laughed happily. He was happy anyway at having rescued Bridge, and the knowledge that his friend was in love and that the girl reciprocated his affection—all of which Billy assumed as the only explanation of her interest in Bridge—only added to his joy. "She ain't a greaser is she?" he asked presently.

"I should say not," replied Bridge. "She's a perfect queen from New York City; but, Billy, she's not for me. What she did was prompted by a generous heart. She couldn't care for me, Billy. Her father is a wealthy man—she could have the pick of the land—of many lands—if she cared to marry. You don't think for a minute she'd want a hobo, do you?"

"You can't most always tell," replied Billy, a trifle sadly. "I knew such a queen once who would have chosen a mucker, if he'd a-let her. You're stuck on her, ol' man?"

"I'm afraid I am, Billy," Bridge admitted; "but what's the use? Let's forget it. Oh, say, is this the horse I let you take the night you robbed the bank?"

"Yes," said Billy; "same little pony, an' a mighty well-behaved one, too. Why?"

"It's hers," said Bridge.

"An' she wants it back?"

"She didn't say so; but I'd like to get it to her some way," said Bridge.

"You ride it back when you go," suggested Billy.

"But I can't go back," said Bridge; "it was Grayson, the foreman, who made it so hot for me I had to leave. He tried to arrest me and send me to Villa."

"What for?" asked Billy.

"He didn't like me, and wanted to get rid of me." Bridge wouldn't say that his relations with Billy had brought him into trouble.

"Oh, well, I'll take it back myself then, and at the same time I'll tell Penelope what a regular fellow you are, and punch in the foreman's face for good luck."

"Oh, no, you mustn't go there. They know you now. It was some of El Orobo's men you shot up day before yesterday when you took their steers from them. They recognized the pony, and one of them had seen you in Cuivaca the night of the robbery. They would be sure to get you, Billy."

Shortly the two came in touch with the retreating Pesitas who were riding slowly toward their mountain camp. Their pursuers had long since given up the chase, fearing that they might be being lured into the midst of a greatly superior force, and had returned to Cuivaca.

It was nearly morning when Bridge and Billy threw themselves down upon the latter's blankets, fagged.

"Well, well," murmured Billy Byrne; "I'll ol' Bridgie's found his Penelope," and fell asleep.

CHAPTER XIII.
Barbara Again

Captain Billy Byrne rode out of the hills the following afternoon upon a pinto pony that showed the whites of its eyes in a wicked rim about the iris and kept its ears perpetually flattened backward.

At the end of a lariat trailed the Brazos pony, for Billy, laughing aside Bridge's pleas, was on his way to El Orobo Rancho to return the stolen horse to its fair owner.

At the moment of departure Pesita had asked Billy to ride by way of Jose's to instruct the old Indian that he should beat word to one Esteban that Pesita required his presence.

It is a long ride from the retreat of the Pesitas to Jose's squalid hut, especially if one be leading an extra horse, and so it was that darkness had fallen long before Billy arrived in sight of Jose's. Dismounting some distance from the hut, Billy approached cautiously, since the world is filled with dangers for those who are beyond the law, and one may not be too careful.

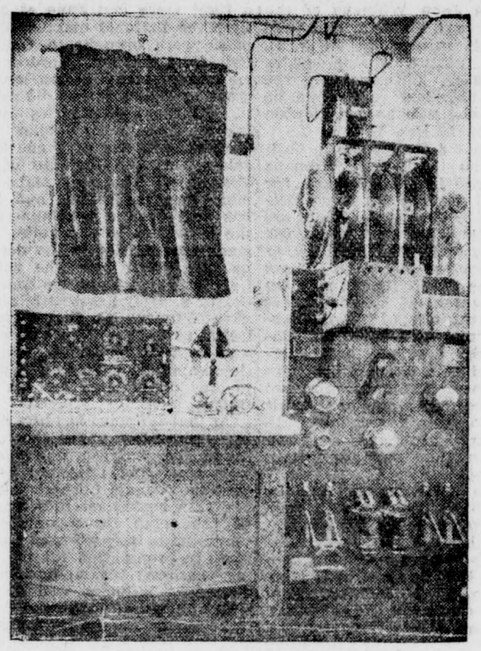
IMPULSE TRANSMITTERS



Complete installation, impulse type transmitter

The apparatus we have dealt with in the preceding articles is known as the four circuit transmitter and, as we have shown, requires critical adjustment between the various circuits. There is, however, another type of inductively coupled transmitter in commercial use which is known as the "impulse" transmitter. This type was developed by Mr. Roy E. Thompson, an American engineer who for many years was in the United States government service, and the transmitter bears his name. Apparatus in principle is also marketed by several other manufacturers, all operate under the principles of the Lodge patent, alluded to in the previous articles devoted to historical reference.

Briefly described, the action and characteristics of this transmitter are as follows: In the inductively coupled sets we have already discussed in these series it was shown how the primary windings of the oscillation transformer consisted of numerous turns of wire and was variable. In the impulse type this is the reverse and the primary is fixed, as is also the condenser, which, contrary to the four circuit type, is of a very high capacitance. The spark gap consists of two high resistance units of high resistance. Taken throughout the closed circuit inductance is kept at a minimum. Wherever possible leads have been done away with. This is carried to such an extent that the gaps and condensers are mounted directly on the face of the panel board and from them is taken a single loop of heavy wire or tubing as the primary of the oscillation transfer. or, as it may correctly be termed, a transfer agency, as it is not strictly a transformer of oscillations, as will presently be shown. This arrangement permits of only one wave length in the closed circuit.

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

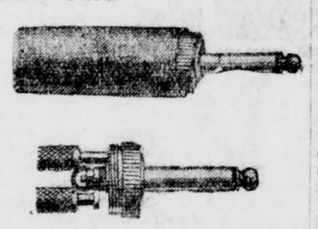
By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

A HANDY RADIO PLUG



A very practical and efficient telephone plug is illustrated. This plug will fit all standard jacks; finished in hard rubber insulation and best non-conductor bushings. The plug is mechanically correct in construction and requires no tools for connecting. The cord tips are brought through the handle and inserted in the screw attachment. A quarter turn on this adjustment makes a secure contact on the tip.

They Say That

More than $300,000 in losses in forest fires last year in Los Angeles county are attributed to carelessness of smokers who drop lighted cigars or cigarets from their autos. County Forester Flintham makes official report to this effect. Total losses, last year, from forest fires were more than $600,000.

This form of carelessness with fire should be inveighed against strongly. It becomes a greater menace as the number of automobiles entering the forest reserves increase. It should be said that the great majority of autoists are conscientiously careful with fire while in the forested areas. But there is a reckless minority, and it is the recklessness of this minority which causes so much material loss to this and other counties of the state. Urgings and warnings should be put before all autoists entering the forest reserves.

But autoists are not the only careless ones. Many pedestrians who hike into the mountains and canyons and build camp fires or light matches to cigars or cigarets are careless and their carelessness starts a destructive fire.

Against recklessness with fire in forest reserves, by any and all, vigorous steps should be taken. It may become necessary, in time, to require persons of responsibility and of material means to make good at least part of the loss which their carelessness with fire may cause.

Unification of two great branches of Methodism in this country seems near. If the recommendations of a joint commission representing the Methodist Episcopal church and the Methodist Episcopal church, south, are approved, these two great religious bodies will be merged under one consolidated general conference, but retaining two jurisdictional conferences.

For seventy-nine years division in Methodism has existed. By bringing these two great bodies together again, the Methodist Episcopal church will be strengthened and its usefulness augmented, as much duplication of effort, both in the home and foreign fields, will be eliminated.

Harmony and co-operation in work of Christian denominations, and branches of denominations, have become noteworthy of recent years. This unity in spirit and effort is making wholesome impression upon the world. It indicates a broadening and deepening of religious zeal, and a far-sighted policy, among the great Christian organizations, to win the world ultimately to the banner of the meek and lowly Nazarene.

Popular Old Detroit Hotel to Be Removed

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 3.—The Cadillac hotel, for years one of the most popular hotels in this part of the country, will fall before the march of progress shortly after July 1. It will be razed and superseded by a modern structure to be erected by the Book Estate. In later years the Cadillac has suffered from the recession which has affected many of the older hotels. The corner is one of the choice locations in the downtown section.

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON, Feb. 3. — Lloyd George has become a political enigma.

When the little Welshman first went out of office as Prime Minister there was a very decided public opinion that he would be back in Downing Street before many months This opinion is now wavering.

The apparent strength of the Tory majority in Parliament is probably largely responsible for the feeling that Lloyd George has been successfully and finally shelved and that he will never be given an opportunity to again rise to power. It is a question, however, whether the Tory government can successfully manipulate its majority, and it seems to be a close race between Ramsay MacDonald and Lloyd George as to who will be the next leader to displace Bonar Law. The betting odds favor Ramsay MacDonald, for he has a very considerable Labor party following in Commons, and public opinion seems to be rapidly mounting in favor of the Labor Party.

Lloyd George's best chance of regaining power would seem to be an alliance with the Labor Party, but even if he should choose to take such a course there are grave doubts whether he would be received into the Labor ranks, and certainly, having gained the strong position it now maintains, there is slight hope of any coalition between Labor and the Georgian Liberals.

The Laborites are not any too kindly disposed toward Lloyd George, for they cannot forget the years when he ruled over them with a strong hand, and it would not be surprising, if Lloyd George threatened to regain his lost power, to see the Laborites joining hands with the Tories to check the little Welshman.

Complete surprises are not unusual in British politics, and almost anything may happen at almost any time. It seems upon the cards that Bonar Law and his Tory government cannot last for more than two or three years, and then comes the question as to a successor. If it is Lloyd George it will certainly be in a new role—that of leader of the Center Party, and the one-time proposed Center Party now is in a most nebulous state.

Many Britishers believe that Lloyd George is through, that he will never return to power. Only time will tell. Meanwhile the former premier is laying his plans, and there are no indications that he contemplates giving up the fight.

British society isn't as bad as it's painted. The Countess of Carrick is authority for this statement. The Bishop of London recently declared that the high circles of British society needed purging, and the Countess of Carrick was quick to rise to the defense of society.

Charges of neglect of the responsibility of raising families are denied by Countess Carrick, who declares that the families of the landed nobility are as large as those of any other class; moreover, she denies that there is gambling and excessive drinking among the upper classes.

"Meanwhile, what are the clergy doing to really help in the matter? What hold as a body have they on the minds and hearts of the people?" asks Countess Carrick. "This is no time for denunciations, no time to fan the flame of class hatred and mistrust. The people ask for bread, not these stones that break the teeth. Even the 'idle rich' are not wholly bad."

This has been a hard year on the Prince of Wales. He has been most unsuccessful in maintaining his mount during the hunting season. On two occasions he has been thrown by his horse and has suffered from a sprained ankle and contusions as the result. Equestrian experts say there is nothing wrong with the Prince's riding, but that he takes great chances and is almost too daring a rider for his own safety. Despite his falls the Prince is still fond of riding and never misses a chance to enter a hunt or a point to point race. In racing he is at his best, and he is rated as one of the best of the gentlemen jockeys of England.

Klan Invasion Threat Makes British Laugh

LONDON, Feb. 3.—They just refuse to take the Ku Klux Klan seriously in England. In fact, it has become a common vaudeville joke.

It might have been thought that the threat of Edward Young Clark to come across and invade the country where liquor is common and—comparatively—cheap might have aroused some apprehensions. Not a bit. The garb of the Ku Klux Klan became the favorite costume of fancy dress balls, and the street urchins, doing their best to imitate it with the aid of old newspapers, marched down the Strand and Piccadilly and held solemn conclaves by the wayside.

A venerable looking official of Whitehall was asked what would happen if the Ku Klux Klan made a serious attempt to come to England. "We should insist that their passports be vised," was his reply. "In a climate like this anything likely to make us laugh is to be welcomed. Let 'em all come."

Even Scotland Yard could not be serious. "Wouldn't it amuse the unemployed?" was the comment. "It would save us a lot of trouble. How many can they afford to send?"

Private citizens are no more aggrieved or upset. So, if Ku Klux Klan likes to come to England in big battalions it can be guaranteed the free use either of Trafalgar Square or Hyde Park. There will be ample free hospitality, and all necessary facilities will be gladly accorded.

Indians Only in New American Legion Post

LODGE GROSS, Mont., Feb. 3.—What is believed to be the only American Legion post composed entirely of Indians has been organized here and application forwarded to national headquarters at Indianapolis for a charter.

The post will be restricted to Indians.

It has been named the Joseph Chief-at-Night Post, in honor of the only member of the Crow tribe of Indians who died in military service during the World war.

It is estimated that there are about 30 Indians on the Crow reservation who are eligible to become members.

Joseph Chief-at-Night died at the Presidio, San Francisco, while he was in service. His body was returned to the home of his tribesmen and was buried besides those of Custer's men, in the National cemetery on the Custer battlefield, near here.

Translates Romeo and Juliet Into Siamese

LONDON, Feb. 3.—His Majesty the King of Siam has earned the right to be classed among the numerous translators of Shakespeare, for he has just completed translating "Romeo and Juliet" into Siamese, and his version will soon be staged in Bangkok, the capital of Siam.

"Romeo and Juliet" is by no means the first Shakespearean play that he has translated. He has previously translated "The Merchant of Venice" and "As You Like It," both of which have been staged and performed at Bangkok.

COMMITTEE MEET TO PLAN BANQUET

Live Cole Class to Hold Annual Dinner, Friday, February 23rd

The entertainment committee of the Live Cole Sunday school class of the Central Christian church held a meeting last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Miller, 434 West Burchett street, for the purpose of forming plans for the staging of the annual class banquet, which is scheduled to take place on Friday evening, February 23.

According to announcements this year's banquet will be the most elaborately arranged of any that has taken place since the inauguration of the custom six years ago. I. B. Carlock and Oscar Whitaker, who are in charge of the distribution of the tickets, have announced that no tickets will be sold after the Sunday preceding the affair.

The members of the committee include Mrs. H. B. Miller, chairman; Miss Margaret Overton, Miss Margaret Morrow, Mrs. I. B. Carlock and Miss Guila Darling.

Scientists to Trace Temblors in Pacific

LONDON, Feb. 3.—An expedition of scientists is leaving London in the summer to navigate parts of the Pacific hitherto shunned and explore remote islands. An attempt will be made to trace the track of the recent earthquake that did the huge damage on the Chilean coast.

The voyage is being organized by the Scientific Expedition and Research society, and a schooner of 2000 tons, with an auxiliary oil engine, is being fitted out for the cruise, which is expected to extend over ten months. The number of scientists will be limited to fifty and will include some women.

An airplane probably will be carried with the expedition, to enable them to get aerial observations and photographs.

Visits to the Canary Islands, Panama and Easter Island are among the schedule.

RIMMER TO CLOSE LECTURE COURSE

Final Address Is Scheduled For Christian Church Sunday Night

Harry Rimmer is closing his meeting in Glendale today and tomorrow. Yesterday noon he addressed the Kiwanis club members, bringing to them an inspirational message on "The American Boy."

In his talk to young people last night at the Central Christian church he spoke on "High Explosives." From his experiences in the artillery corps of the army he drew the lesson of the evening.

At the meeting Mayor Spencer Robinson, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson, sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Mrs. Edgar Lloyd Smith and Harry Marple also sang a duet.

Delegations of boys from Burbank and Alhambra attended the meeting.

Mr. Rimmer's final address will be Sunday night at 6:15 o'clock at the Central Christian church on "The Unbaptized Arm."

Honolulu Malnutrition Rate Alarms Doctors

HONOLULU, Feb. 3.—Despite climatic advantages here, the children of the island capital are malnourished to a startling degree, recent statistics compiled and published by Dr. William R. P. Emerson of Boston show.

The malnutrition average here of 35.9 per cent is more than twice that of Chicago's "yards district."

The 16,000 children here who have been given the tests have passed them with lower averages than equal numbers in any mainland cities where the tests have been given, with one exception.

JAPAN MAY LOSE

Synthetic camphor, made from the turpentine of the pine forests of the south, is expected to remove Japan's control of the supply. The new process does not require elaborate machinery and can be made in plant units, and a by-product which is the result of this synthetic treatment, has a commercial value almost equal to the cost of the original turpentine.

ORANGE SHOW OF MUCH BEAUTY

Display Opens At San Bernardino February 16

A typical feature display at the National Orange Show which opens at San Bernardino February 16. Plans for this year's exposition rival in beauty and size any previous exhibition. There will be millions of oranges displayed in racks of beauty, many of them creations of noted designers and artists.

Hen Is Justly Proud Of Potential Triplets

GUILFORD, Conn., Feb. 3.—William Roode, hearing unusual cackling in his bennery here, hurried out to find a favorite hen walking about her nest proclaiming unusual tidings to all the world. Visions of an otter stolen up from the nearby brook to feast on poultry were dispelled when Roode found a huge egg that was three eggs in one. Roode's hen, a mixture of Brahma, red leghorn and bantam, had laid an egg in which eggs of the three were clearly discernible.

BECOMING UNFIT

Buildings of the University of Vienna are becoming unfit for use due to neglect and lack of money for repairs. The roof of University Hall has not been repaired since before the war and the rain is coming through, loosening the plaster, cracking the mouldings and staining the fine frescoes with dampness.

Bone Awaits Dog Who Quit Little Playmates

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 3.—There's a bone at the doghouse door at the Madisonville Branch of the Children's Home, and 85 children include in their nightly prayer a petition that "Pal," their lost Airedale pet, be sent back to them. For a year and a half he was playmate and companion to the children, and the other night he disappeared. Since then the youngsters have been inconsolable.

RETURNS TO GERMANY

The French Ministry of Foreign Affairs has refused to allow the manuscript of Goethe's "Faust" to be sold at public auction. The manuscript will be returned to Germany. This manuscript was on exhibition at the Lyons Exposition when the war broke out, having been loaned by the German Museum at Frankfurt. Later it was sequestered by the French government as enemy property.

LAND MARK WILL BE SUBDIVIDED

Reynolds Ranch to Be Cut Up Into Small Sites for Home Seekers

Twenty-five years ago, when there were barley fields where the business center is located at Brand boulevard and Broadway, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reynolds came from the state of Pennsylvania to live on a ranch home on Kenneth road.

At that time there were no street cars running in the little village of Glendale, nor was there electricity nor gas. Sandy roads led about the town and surrounding country and the family horse furnished the slow means of travel.

But Mrs. Reynolds did not depend entirely on this means of transportation, for she had a bicycle and she recalls many trips across the road through the barley field in what is now the center of the fastest growing city of its size in the United States.

Will Sell Property

After the purchase of the ranch property on Kenneth road the Reynolds' planted oranges and their citrus grove is well known to Glendalians.

They have announced that twenty acres of their property is now being platted ready for subdivision into home sites, which will be put on the market within ten days. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds are keeping the location of their residence, comprising one and a quarter acres.

On the various lots there will be left citrus trees from the vast grove.

GENEROUS REPLY TO PLEA FOR AID

Complete Furniture of House Given by Glendalians to Needy Family

The confidence of The Glendale Evening News in a hearty response from Glendale people to the plea for aid for a grandmother and four little grand-daughters was well founded, for this morning they are moving in their little home, which has been practically furnished by readers of The Evening News.

The Welfare Council has been interested in helping the little family and when their need was brought to the attention of The Evening News office a plea was made through the columns for contributions.

According to Mrs. E. D. Yard the response was wonderful, resulting in the new home having a complete dining room set, chairs, rockers, two beds, two dressers, mattresses, stoves and countless other useful things. In addition there were generous contributions of money and clothing.

Three Glendale Girls Win Prizes in Contest

Mary Byrd, Roberta Cullen and Lynette Hezmalhalch, three eighth grade students at the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school, are prize winners in an essay contest conducted by the Davis Perfection Bakery in Los Angeles. The girls visited the bakery with the domestic science class from the school and were invited to write essays on their trip. The three best essays were chosen and the girls received three beautifully decorated cakes bearing their names as prizes.

TAX ON FOREIGNERS

A special residence tax for foreigners has been fixed by the Thuringian government, according to reports from Weimar, Germany. Residence of more than three days will cost from $2 to $4; for a month, from $4 to $10; for more than six months, from $30 to $50. Other foreigners are to be taxed in proportion.

KIWANIS EVANGELIST SHARES BILL WITH Y. M. C. A. SPEAKER

Club Members Hear Two Vivid Addresses by Orators at Double Header Lunch

THE GLENDALE KIWANIS CLUB yesterday enjoyed a "double header!" Harry Rimmer, pep promoter for the Y. M. C. A., divided honors with L. D. Barr, evangelist of Kiwanianism. The luncheon, which was held in the dining room of the Citizens' building, was well attended by members of the club and their guests. As usual, vigor and pep were features of the occasion.

The attendance prize was a merchandise order from C. J. Hatz's Correct Wear Shop at 132 South Brand boulevard. It was won by Frank L. Fox. As the drawing was about to commence, Bert Perry rushed up and dropped his attendance slip into the hat. When this was next to the lucky one selected, a roar of laughter went around the tables.

The silent boosts were small scrubbing brushes placed at each plate by Emil O. Kiefer, member of the firm of Kiefer & Eyerick.

A collection of $16.75 was taken up at the suggestion of Ed N. Radke for a local destitute family. He stated that he would turn this money immediately over to the Glendale Welfare Board.

Ex-Kiwanis Governor

L. D. Barr is a resident of Tacoma where he was formerly governor of the northwest district of United States for Kiwanis International.

"I have studied Kiwanis Clubs in many cities up and down the coast," he asserted, "and the things that they do are tremendous in their scope. They are full of unselfishness in spirit."

As an illustration of the indomitable spirit of Kiwanis, Mr. Barr cited the the case of the Astoria, Ore., Kiwanis club, which held its regular meeting the same week that the entire business district of the community had been wiped out by fire and all of its seventy-six members financially ruined over night.

"Selfish individualism leads to barbarism," quoted Mr. Barr, who fully traced the development of selfishness from the caveman, whose only law was the law of his desire, through his family and his tribe to the nation of today, which has been thinking only of its own gain.

Civilization today is on the brink of barbarism once more, in the opinion of Mr. Barr, who believes that only one thing can save it—the Golden Rule.

Tells Basic Ideal

"The doctrine of the Golden rule is the basic principle upon which Kiwanis ideals are built," remarked Mr. Barr, who said that this rule could only be properly applied by the person who has "imagination enough to put himself in the other fellow's place."

"Kiwanis," he exclaimed, "is a call to duty and responsibility!"

Harry Rimmer, who is now filling a lecture engagement in Glendale for the local Y. M. C. A., stated that the American boy of today needs three opportunities: First, the opportunity to earn a living; second, the opportunity to secure an education; and third, the opportunity to live up to his ideals. He appealed to the members of the club to bear in mind always that their footsteps, as successful business men, are being followed by the coming generation.

"I feel that I am a big business man myself," remarked Mr. Rimmer. "I am engaged in helping to develop America's largest resource—the American boy.

"The American boy is a humdinger! There is no question about that. And the needs of the American boy are almost as numerous as his questions."

Seven-eighths of the 4,900,000 boys in this country between the ages of 14 and 19 are working for a living, according to Mr. Rimmer. He said that it was quite true that they did not have to work—they could starve. He commented on the fact that rarely does the boy who needs to work get fitted up to the right kind of a job. He said that only one boy out of eight gets the fullest opportunities for an education.

Hope of America

"The hope of America in the future is in her boys!" exclaimed Mr. Rimmer, who jocularly stated that most business men have one foot in the grave and the other foot on a banana peel and that they would be surprised how readily the younger generation would be able to step into their places. He paid highest tribute to the precociousness and intelligence of American youth and stated that boys of today are twice as smart as their fathers at the same age—because they are living in a magnificent scientific era.

A boy who has a tenth of a chance will earn a living honestly and a boy who has half a chance will get an education, in the opinion of Mr. Rimmer. He commented on the fact that boys are likely to pattern their lives upon those of the successful business men in their community.

"The great need of the American boy," he concluded, "is that you be true to your ideals."

INSTALL 6 MILES OF WATER MAINS

Highways at Sparr Heights Are Now Being Graded By Contractors

Sparr Heights, the 1500-acre tract lying northeast of Glendale on the picturesque Verdugo road in the heart of the famous Verdugo valley, is now the scene of intense activity.

The six miles of four-inch iron pipe that is to be used as mains for distributing the water supply throughout the tract has recently been delivered and its installation has begun and is being rapidly pushed to completion, and when finished there will be a sufficient supply of pure mountain water to meet the needs of a community of 40,000 people.

The $20,000 Community Center building dedicated to the city of Glendale and the inhabitants of Sparr Heights by the owners of the tract, the cornerstone of which was laid with imposing ceremonies December 24, is well under way and its mission arches are already assuming definite shape.

Grading Roads

Three separate gangs of contractors are hard at work grading the roads and installing the curbs, gutters and sidewalks, while a gang of engineers is at work setting stakes to mark the boundaries and establish the grades of the curving boulevards that are to traverse the tract.

The Oakmont Country club has at last accepted a design for their club building and work has already begun on the site for the structure and the mammoth swimming pool, which will be one of its most attractive features.

Work on the construction of the 18-hole golf course will begin shortly and be pushed rapidly and it will not be many months before its vivid greens will skirt the boulevard, adding another picturesque feature to this favorite boulevard drive.

Homes Being Built

This course, comprising 120 acres, lies in the very center of Sparr Heights and will eventually be surrounded by handsome homes for which it will constitute a most attractive foreground and be the means of attracting many golf enthusiasts from Glendale, Eagle Rock and adjacent territory.

Several artistic homes are already in process of construction, and plans for some twenty-six more pretentious residences have already been approved, the work on which will begin in the immediate future and intense activity is in pronounced progress all over the tract.

Do your buying in Glendale.

THE SOCIAL CLIMBER

It must be perfectly awful to be a social climber.

I can't think of anything I'd hate worse. Can you?

Friendship and neighborliness are two of the most heart warming realities in life.

And the social climber has no room in her life (I have known masculine ones, but they were rare and were usually mere echoes of energetically climbing wives) for any natural, uncalculating enjoyment of friends and neighbors.

She Can't Afford Friends

Social relationships are her business not her happiness. She can't bother with any one she can't use as a step up. And even if she doesn't so atrophy her feelings that she isn't capable of liking any one, she can't afford to like any one for long. For if she is a genuine climber she has to keep discarding acquaintances as fast as by their help she has climbed a little beyond them.

Then the social climber must always be putting her best foot forward. Never a chance to relax and be herself. She must always be impressing some one. If she goes anywhere and meets new people she must drum up mutual acquaintances that will sound impressive. Never mind whether she really knows the people she talks about, she can talk as if she did. I heard one woman of this sort the other day. She was trying to impress some people who came from a suburb neighboring hers. "It is awfully gloomy in W..... just now," she said. "You see we have been terribly hard hit by the flu. Mr. Cabot and Mrs. Ames died the very same week and then dear old Mr. Lowell had a stroke and we are afraid he will never be himself again. It has quite cast a pall over the community. You don't feel like giving parties when your friends are in such trouble."

Perhaps She Went to the Funerals

Afterwards I asked some one who knew her in her home town if the Cabots or the Ames or the Lowells were really her friends. "She lives in the same town with them," said this woman, "but I don't believe she ever met them except at some big crush."

Fancy being obliged by the social bug to use even death as part of your personal propaganda!

Of course the most disagreeable part of social climbing must be the invitations that don't come and the cold shoulders and snubs and even insults that you have to put up with. To be sure you are always upheld by the feeling that if you keep at it hard enough you may be able to insult these same people some day. And when you do attain that splendid goal there surely must be a vivid satisfaction. Revenge is very sweet. But it isn't a very healthy diet any more than too much sweets of other kinds. It doesn't feed the soul or the heart or the mind—those sources of the only true and lasting happiness in life.

One Might Get Curly Hair

I have always had a great fear of typhoid fever, but if I had to choose between the typhoid fever bug and the social bug, I think I should take the fever. Anyway, I might get curly hair out of that. And I don't know of anything I would get out of the other except disappointment and heart ache, and a rotten sense of values, and a possible success that would surely turn to ashes if I did win.

Most people who aren't climbers themselves are apt to dislike and scorn the social climber.

I think we would do better to pity her.

Building Contractor In New Headquarters

C. M. Briggs, general building contractor of 632 West Alexander street, has opened new offices at 105½ South Central avenue in the building recently constructed by him for Mrs. Sherman. Half of these offices he has sublet to E. J. Hayes and A. T. Pruyn, of the Home Realty company.

Mr. Briggs, who formerly maintained an office at 719 South Brand boulevard, has won many friends through his speedy and efficient work. Last year he constructed over $100,000 worth of residence and business buildings, and since January 1, 1923, he has under way construction to the extent of $25,000.

BEAUTY CHATS

EDNA KENT FORBES

SOME BEAUTY FREAKS

If you want to waste a lot of money, there are a most amazing number of things to waste it on, all going under the name of beauty aids.

When I was first in Paris, I saw exquisite boxes in beauty shop windows labelled "cils," "cil" I knew meant eye lash; but who kept eyelashes in a box? I went in one place and asked to see them, amused and ashamed of my ignorance. And sure enough, each box contained a most beautiful pair of eyelashes, black, brown, any shade you fancied—long, thick, made of real hair, I was assured, threaded on a colorless hair, ready to be attached to any pair of eyes in need of beautifying! One could have them at ten francs and up, and a mucilage came for attaching, which kept them on all day but allowed them to be washed loose with warm water, so they could be put away—more or less like false teeth!—for the night.

Of course the owner of such sweeping lashes couldn't weep, for if she indulged in sorrow, she would weep her eyelashes out, if not her eyes. Later I saw these rather odd inventions in London and New York, and I hear that they are sold in many other places. You'll wonder what they looked like. Well, they looked like what they were, fake eyelashes. For a real lash tapers imperceptibly towards its ends, the color gradually fading out, these were stiff and brittle, and blunt at the tips, and far too coarse. No amount of ingenuity could make them seem real.

What an odd creature a woman can make of herself—with a transparent complexion done with violet powder, or a romantic pallor done with green, with hair dyed or bleached any exotic shade, false eyelashes, eyes cut to make them larger, figure moulded and padded—but why go with the list?

Mary B.—If you weaned the baby too suddenly or if you used anything to dry up the breasts it would make them flat and flabby as you describe. With proper care the bust should be as good looking before as after childbirth. As you seem to be too thin all over I think that if you take olive oil and rich milk and other things to make you fat you will notice a quick improvement in the bust. Do not wear any sort of brassiere at night, and during the day, not a tight one as you do now, but one snug enough to support the bust without confining it. Massage this part daily with warm cocoa butter followed by an ice rub or cold water rinse.

Cora.—If you washed your hair properly there would not be what you describe as greasy patches afterwards. Rub the scalp the night before with hot olive oil. Melt castile soap to a liquid with hot water and soap the hair 3 times with this, using fresh hot water each time. Rinse till every particle of soap is out, using a hose with running water if you can.

Mrs. B.—I would not advise the steady use of vanishing cream on the face as it is apt to clog the pores. For wrinkles I would advise a really nourishing face cream, one made with olive or almond oil.

J. S.—See a doctor at once about the inflamed eyes. Styes come from a poor condition of the blood and should really be treated medically.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Mrs. Y. V.—You say you are very nervous, that you have heart disease, and gas on the stomach. Have you had an examination to see whether you have heart disease? It is possible that all you have is gas on the stomach. That will give symptoms of heart disease.

There are many causes for gas on the stomach. Among them are eating too rapidly and swallowing air, improper diet, overeating, and so on. It also may be caused by nervousness.

If you will send a stamped, self-addressed envelope (be sure to address the envelope to yourself) we will give you the name of some books on nerves which will help you. You may also have our letter on heart disease.

M. R.—Yes, if your mother is a twin you may have twins, or you may have twins even if your mother is not a twin. Twinning does seem to be an inherited characteristic. Wish I had inherited it. Don't you hope you will?

S. F.—Is once a week too often to eat dessert? No, you can eat dessert every day if you want to. If you want to lose weight, however, it is not a good plan to eat rich desserts because they contain too many calories, and the calories that are furnished in rich desserts are not accompanied by the essential minerals and vitamins and proteins needed by the system. Therefore if you are taking too many calories in the form of dessert and at the same time go on a reducing number of calories, you will deprive your system of the elements necessary for good health. So, while you would reduce your weight, you would also reduce your strength and health.

Send for our pamphlet on reducing. (Enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope and four cents in stamps.) That will tell you how to reduce and at the same time improve your health.

For desserts while reducing, if you must have them, baked apples or raw fruits, or custards made with skim milk, tapioca and simple gelatin puddings are the best standbys.

It is a fine idea, however, to learn to go without desserts. I never have accomplished it myself. Perhaps it is because I have never deprived myself long enough of them. However, I keep my weight down to normal. So it can be done even though you do eat desserts occasionally.

Mrs. E. M.—By this time you must have received the pamphlet on how to gain. You probably have profited by it and have gained your wanted pounds, as many others have done, if you had any organic reason for being thin corrected.

Let us hear from you now how much you have gained.

Mrs. F. C.—We have written an article on high blood pressure. You may have it my sending your request to me in care of this paper, accompanied by an envelope which you have stamped and addressed fully to yourself.

Mrs. E. F.—Sometimes the menstrual periods start before it is time to wean the baby. A baby should be nursed for eight or nine months at least, if possible. It has been observed that during the menstrual period babies may be a little upset, but usually it is temporary and they recover quickly. So I should not advise you to wean your baby simply because the menstrual periods have recommenced.

Nina—So you want to be beautiful. So do we all. It is a highly commendable ambition and fortunately one that can be gratified. For even though we have not classical beauty of face and figure, a beautiful spirit registers so that he who runs can read. And we all can annex that.

We are all strong for physical beauty, too. One of the surest things we can do to attain that is to keep our bodies in good proportion. Your too large busts will be reduced when you reduce your general weight.

The clever and economical housewife familiarizes herself with the various methods of clothes-renovation, so that she can avoid bills for dry-cleaning.

I have on my desk six letters from Reader Friends, each letter asking for advice on renovating either woolen, goods, silks or velvets. I will take up these three materials separately:

TO CLEAN WOOLEN GOODS: Gasoline, benzine or naphtha are excellent for cleaning woolen goods. As these fluids are highly inflammable, they should not be used near heat and flame. Ordinary spots, from grease or dust, can be removed by dipping a cloth in the gasoline and rubbing this on the spot. But there are many housewives who do not use gasoline; they think there is nothing better than the simple old-fashioned method of washing woolen goods in warm water and soapbark. To do this, get ten cents' worth of soapbark from your druggist and pour over it two quarts of boiling water. Let this stand until the strength is taken from the bark, then strain, and pour into a tube of lukewarm water. Let the material stand for one-half hour in the suds, then rub well and rinse in another water of the same temperature (to keep the goods from shrinking). Press on the wrong side before thoroughly dry. You should always experiment first with a small piece of the material to be sure that it does not change color or shrink badly, under this treatment. If you find it does, then use the gasoline treatment. A badly soiled wool garment may be immersed in a gallon or two of gasoline, dipped up and down in it to loosen the dirt, then rinsed in clean gasoline and hung on the line until the odor has completely evaporated.

FOR SILKS: Mix six ounces of strained honey and four ounces of a pure white soap with one pint of good alcohol. Lay each piece of silk flat on a table and, with a brush, cover the silk with the mixture, first on one side and then on the other. Brush as little as possible and always straight up and down. Dip the silk in several tepid rinsing-waters, the last one mixed with a little honey. Do not wring the silk. Simply hang it up and, when half-dry, iron with a cool iron on the wrong side.

VELVETS are cleaned by steaming. First brush it well to remove dust. Then put a hot iron in a box, wedged up-side down, and cover the face of the hot iron with a good-sized piece of wet muslin. This produces steam. Move the muslin along as it dries on the iron. Hold the velvet with its wrong side against the muslin and brush it carefully with a soft brush until the pile is raised—brushing against the nap. Another way to steam velvet is to hold it tightly over a pan of boiling water.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. # GRADUATES URGED TO START HIGH SCHOOL STUDY COURSES

Characteristics of Educated Man Described By Speaker In Stirring Address

ONE hundred and twenty-four graduates of the Glendale dale intermediate schools were given their diplomas last night in the high school auditorium and were extended an invitation to commence their studies at once in Glendale Union High school.

As a representative of the board of education, Dr. Presly O. Lucas of 1243 South Brand boulevard, presented the diplomas.

The processional and recessional was played by the grammar school orchestra, while two songs were sung by a girls' chorus. The musical portion of the program was under the direction of Miss Elsa Brenneman, supervisor of music in the grammar school system.

"What is an educated man?" inquired Reynold E. Blight of Los Angeles during his speech last night in the high school auditorium before the 124 graduates of the Glendale grammar school system.

Defines Educated Man

"First of all," replied Mr. Blight, "an educated man is the master of himself. Man has a body, keep it strong and clean and true. Man has an intellect, inform it, train it, sharpen it until it carries the keenness and temper of a Damascus blade. Maintain the integrity of your mind. Never give hospitality to a lie. Never cherish a superstition, a prejudice or a fear. Surrender your mind to no external authority. Dedicate yourself to truth, to reason and to right.

"An educated man is master of his emotions, impulses and desires. Psycho-analysis reveals to us the significant truth that our actions are determined not so much by reason as by hidden impulses and secret longings that we have inherited from our progenitors. They are dormant forces, which, suddenly stirred into life, may sweep us to disaster but, curbed and brought under control, become mighty tides to carry us on to triumph.

"An educated man is master of his tools. A key in the hand of Franklin tamed the thunderbolts of the Almighty. A quill in the hand of Shakespeare created the tenderest, sweetest, strongest, most terrible characters conceived by human imagination. A copper disc and a horseshoe magnet enabled Faraday to discover those laws that gave us this marvelous age of electricity. A pen in the hand of Lincoln struck the shackles from the limbs of four million slaves.

"What is your tool? Make it responsive to your need to express your ideal. Do not rest satisfied until you have mastered the technique of your profession, your trade, your business.

Master of Ideals

"An educated man is the master of ideals. The only difference between a mechanic and an artist is that one has a vision, an ideal. One man sees only a block of stone; the illumined eye of another sees an angel imprisoned in the marble. Jacob Riis gave his life in loving service among the outcasts of the New York slums because he saw God in the face of the vilest and lowest. Perry braved the perils of an Arctic winter again and again because the North Pole lured him to its final conquest.

"Hold fast to a high ideal, it gives meaning to work, significance to life, and will illuminate the darkest night.

"An educated man is a master of men. The nations are confused, bewildered. Who shall lead the people out of the land of bondage, this slavery to the sordid, selfish life of today, to the land of tomorrow when humanitarian ideals of justice and liberty shall prevail?

"The world awaits the courageous youth who, with high purpose and noble ideal, shall give us a re-birth of civilization. This is the golden age of opportunity."

Urges Opposition to Vaccination Ordinance

A desire to have all dog owners and others who are fond of canines present at the City Council chamber Monday night, February 5, when the proposed ordinance may come up for further consideration, is expressed by Mrs. John S. Knox of 435 South Central avenue.

"This ordinance, which contemplates vaccinating all dogs and raising their license fees to an exorbitant figure, is a most ill-conceived and ridiculous measure," states Mrs. Knox, "and ought to be booed off the stage. We want to be fair about the dogs but we want others to be fair, too. And that is why every dog lover should turn out Monday night to see that no such measure is adopted."

UTAH ORATOR TO ADDRESS C. OF C.

Senator Cartright to Speak On Economic Problems At Monthly Meet

The special feature of the regular monthly program of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, to be held on Thursday, February 22, will be an address by Senator George W. Cartwright of Utah, one of the leading orators and students of economics in the country today. Senator Cartwright will take for his subject, "Political Economics Patriotically Applied," the same address as he delivered recently before the annual gathering of the Merchants & Manufacturer of Los Angeles, where it was admitted to be the most masterful and forceful exposition of the remedies needed for many of the economic ills of the nation ever presented to a California audience.

Patriotic Program

A special program of patriotic music will be presented by Mayor and Mrs. Spencer Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard, and a selected list of local artists who are yet to be chosen. This program will occupy half an hour and will be given before Senator Cartwright speaks.

As it is anticipated that the crowd that will turn out to hear Senator Cartwright will be too large for the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, the organization has secured permission to hold the meeting on February 22 in the auditorium of the Glendale High school, and admission will be by tickets that will be mailed to every member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Baseball men believe, in luck, and there are times when every manager yearns to knock on wood with a stuffed club.
